Paris' Idea of News
Those Who Die "Piously"
Worry Everywhere
The Chicle Trail

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

"What is truth?" asked jesting Pilate, and would not wait for an answer.

"What is news?" is a question more often asked, and the answers given in Paris would sometimes surprise you.

The estimable Paris Figaro prints all the United States political news in perhaps half a dozen lines in small type on the third page, attaching equal importance to the "news" that an estimable, aged French marquise, Arcede Pieusement, has deceased piously.

Crossing the ocean makes a great difference in news-values.

In Paris, by the way, when a member of the extinct "aristocracy" dies, it is customary to add that he or she died "piously." That word does not appear in the case of officials of the republic and ordinary Frenchmen. They are not supposed to "die piously."

A "pious" London advertiser who pays to spread the light, prints at the head of one London Times personal column, these extracts from the fifty-eighth chapter of Isaiah:

"... Thy righteousness shall go before thee; the glory of the Lord shall be thy reward. Then shalt thou call, and the Lord shall answer; thou shalt cry and He shall say, here I am."

No text could have been more appropriate for that particular morning, because at the top of the very next column, also personal, this appears:

"Ruth—Such a sorry state of affairs. I tremble to think ahead.—J. M."

It might comfort "J. M." and Ruth, to know how many in Wall Street and various other American localities feel the same way, and "tremble to think ahead."

Happy and very numerous are those that do not "think ahead," or backward, or in the present, for the reason that they do not think.

Those London Times personal advertisements cost $1.25 a line.

If you chew gum or if you don't, this may interest you. Scientists seeking ancient temples and strange monuments in dense tropical forests of Central America, where the ancient Mayans lived and built, followed a trail to the chicle hunters.

Those are the men that look for the chico-sapote tree, of which the sap when boiled becomes pure chewing gum. Our hunting ancestors followed the trails of the mammoth through the thick brush. Our archeologists follow the trail of chewing gum. Our descendants will do ninety per cent of their exploring from flying machines, and do much of it from the air now.

Before C. Harold Smith died in London, he asked newspaper readers to advise him "how to spend ten million dollars for the greatest possible good for humanity." Whether he spent the ten millions as advised, is not known.

In Heaven he may be surprised to learn how little difference anything done by anybody in this insignificant planet amounts to in the long run.

It is what we all do together by combined wisdom of the human race that counts. And even that doesn't matter much in the universe that counts our solar system as one of many "cosmic molecules."

It will surprise many Americans to know that in the beginning of the last century, less than seven per cent of the population belonged to religious bodies. There was much so-called "free thinking" in those days, due to the importing of the influence of the French revolution. Thomas Jefferson wrote to a Mohammedan ruler that the United States was not a Christian country, professed no religion, nor would he facilitate the making of a treaty with the Mohammedans.

KNIFE SAVES 5-DAY BABY DOOMED TO 'MERCY DEATH'

The controversy over the life or "mercy death" of Julian Tafel, Jr., 5-day-old mite, has seemingly ended happily in the Danish-American Hospital in Chicago by an operation. A mother's winning plea over the father's refusal to allow an operation to correct an intestinal malformation set surgeons to work. Bulletins from the hospital indicated baby would survive. BULLETINS

Hendaye, Sept. 23 (INS)—Five hundred Spanish militiamen were killed or wounded today in fighting on the Asturias front, according to a rebel broadcast from Seville.

London, Sept. 23 (INS)—Spanish government troops captured the ruins of the Alcazar in Toledo this morning, it was stated in a Reuter dispatch from Madrid late today.

London, Sept. 23 (INS)—Bringing the death roll of non-combatants to a new peak, more mass executions and other horrors were reported in Daily Mail dispatches today from Spain.

Eye-witnesses at Toledo, according to the newspaper, said 30 priests in one street were shot in a group.

Nuns who fled to the cellar when their convent was fired on by Reds at Bilbao were dragged out and paraded naked through the streets, to the accompaniment of blows and insults.

In Villaverde, said the Mail, prisoners who were on their way by train to Madrid were stopped and shot. Among them was the bishop of Jaen who, upon his arrest, was forced to walk naked at the head of a procession composed of women of questionable character.

Many men, women, and children have been executed in their houses at Malaga or taken into the street and shot, dispatches continued.

A 15-year-old boy was beheaded in front of his mother because his father, who died two years ago, was a Fascist. The head was placed by the side of the unconscious mother.

Reds murdered 120 men, women, and children in Antiquera on Aug. 27, the Mail asserted.

Seven Capuchin monks, most of them 70 to 80 years old, were killed. In some cases, whole families were wiped out, and on one occasion six children under 12 years of age were slain.

Azana Reported Ready To Surrender to Rebels

Rabat, French Morocco, Sept. 23 (AP)—The insurgent radio station at Cadiz today said President Manuel Azana of Spain wanted to surrender to Fascist armies, but that Premier Francisco Largo Caballero was opposing such a step, insisting resistance still was possible.

Train Kills Father of 9 In Revere

James Kinelly, 42, of 852 North Shore road, Revere, federal Works Progress Administration employe and father of nine children, was killed today when struck by a Narrow Gauge train near the Crescent Beach station in Revere.

Police were told by the electric train motorman William Frazer of Tinson street, Lynn, that he saw the man walking along the tracks and blow the whistle.

Kinelly, however, according to the motorman, veered close to the train instead of stepping away, and was struck a glancing blow by the front car steps and perhaps by the side of the car.

He died in a Revere police ambulance on the way to Massachusetts General Hospital.

LANDON PLEDGES WORD TO PAY DEAL FARM DEBTS

CALLS FOR CROP INSURANCE, LOANS IN IOWA SPEECH

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Des Moines, Ia., Sept. 23—After expounding a new national policy for the preservation of the family type farm and for restoration of permanent agricultural prosperity, Governor Alfred M. Landon scheduled a series of conferences here today with political leaders, rural editors and dirt farmers.

The Republican nominee, speaking to a wildly enthusiastic audience of 30,000 at the Fair Grounds, pledged an administration which would make the farmer a "lord on his own farm." He promised to preserve "individual opportunity" on the farm, with a program that will maintain the family type farm as a home and source of livelihood.

To restore permanent farm prosperity, he pledged a long-range program including soil and water conservation, study of crop insurance, development of proper land use, cash benefits on domestic portions of exportable surplus crops and federal credit to finance the purchase of farms.

Meanwhile, he promised a continuation of farm relief checks and federal aid to victims of drouths and other natural disasters.

His program was hailed by Republican leaders and farm editors in his party as the "turning point" in the presidential campaign in the farm belt. A jubilant Republican leadership predicted he would carry Iowa by from 50,000 to 100,000, while farm editors declared it materially strengthened his cause throughout the entire Midwest.

Governor Landon's speech last night follows in full:

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen:

We are here for a frank discussion of the needs of farming. You want to know what policies the farmers can count on from the Republican party. My purpose is to tell you.

Most of my life, private and public, has been spent in close contact with farmers. For four years I have had the honor of being governor of a great agricultural state.

I know the aspirations of farm folks. They want to have the same chance and the same protection in the market as other American industries. They want a settled, workable, national policy for agriculture.

And I know that above all else they want no system which penalizes plenty and rewards scarcity. The American farmer wants to produce without fear.

There is no greater satisfaction than in owning the piece of land that a man and his family call home. There is a feeling of partnership in a common undertaking among husband and wife and children that is more possible on the farm than anywhere else.

There is nothing more satisfying than raising good crops, having a crib full of corn, plenty of hay in the mow or stack, and hogs and cattle fattening in the feed lot. As one of my farmer friends recently said to me, and said with all reverence:

"Lord, I wish we could have those things again!"

For 15 years we have been struggling with what has been called "the farm question."

It is not a farm question but a national question.

It is a question of whether the farmer and his family will be able to buy the things they need—whether they'll be able to maintain the full American standard of living.

It is a question of whether the rest of our people will be able to trade a part of their products to the man on the land for three square meals a day.

Income Parity

All the farmer asks is that income be on a parity with the rest of the nation; that he may enjoy the same standard of life; that his home be made secure, and that he be able to build up a reserve for the future.

It is to the direct interest of the consumers and other producers of this nation that the farmer be a good provider and a good customer.

I know that those aims cannot be realized over night. Miracles are no more common in Washington than they are in Des Moines. To get a real solution we must have a well-rounded program—a program that will meet, not only the present emergency, and the immediate future, but also the long-time pull!

The Republican platform offers just such a program. By it we are pledged: To meet, to the fullest extent, the present distress caused by the drouth.

To make the farm standard of living secure, by protecting the income of the farm family.

To guard the food supply of the nation by preserving our soil and other natural resources through sound conservation and land-use policies.

To protect the farm and the rest of the country from ruinous debt and taxation.

This program not only takes care of the present, not only safeguards the farm family while we are working toward the necessary adjustments of the future, but it provides a settled, a workable, national policy for agriculture.

Promises Relief

Before I go into a discussion of this program, let me make this one point absolutely clear. If I am elected I shall fulfill all outstanding obligations made by the present administration with the American farmer. By this I mean that those who have carried out their end of the bargain will receive the checks due them.

I am equally emphatic in my views on meeting the suffering caused by the present drouth. We will use the full power of government to relieve the present distress.

Those of our farmers hard hit by the drouth will be generously provided for until they can raise a crop. This means the continuation of relief checks. It means as well, in the case of many farmers, seed loans and other necessary assistance in order that the farmer may get started again. Where such help is needed, we will give it promptly. There will be no waste and no politics.

Let me repeat this part of the Republican program. We will not allow needless suffering in this country—either on our farms or in our cities. We are determined to extend every reasonable aid to our people to get them back on a self-supporting basis in the shortest possible time.

Now I turn to our policies which deal with the future!

For many years farmers producing crops of which there is normally an exportable surplus have worked under a handicap. I mean such staple products as hogs, wheat, cotton and tobacco.

The surplus is sold in world markets, and the price of the entire crop is affected by what the surplus will bring. Tariff protection for these products, generally speaking, is ineffective, except when there is a shortage. This handicap has become increasingly severe in recent years.

Today, policies of foreign nations are shaped principally by imperialistic aims and the fears they create. World markets are largely closed to our agriculture surpluses. Our foreign competitors are aided by government subsidies.

So long as this is the case, the cards are stacked against our farmers.

Sometime there again will be normal world conditions. In the meantime those of our farmers with exportable surpluses will remain at a disadvantage with our other producers.

Cash Benefits

The Republican party proposes to offset these disadvantages by the payment of cash benefits. These cash benefits will be limited to the production level of the family-type farm.

We are pledged by our platform—I quote:

"To provide, in the case of agricultural products of which there are exportable surpluses, the payment of reasonable benefits upon the domestically consumed portion of such crops, in order to make the tariff effective. This means that our farmers will receive an American and not a foreign price for their products."

This is the first time this principle has been put forward by a major political party. Such protection is simply common fairness to the farmer. It will act as insurance until long-time programs of surplus removal and land-use can be brought into effect.

I will stand by this pledge. In doing so, I shall call on the statesmanship of both parties and will consult and work with responsible farmers and farm leaders.

We're going to see to it that the farmer whose crops have to be sold on a world market gets the equivalent of a really effective tariff. One thing we have learned from past experience is this: We cannot let temporary surpluses destroy the standard of living of the farm family.

As part of the plan for removing the depressing effect of surpluses, I shall propose an amendment to the federal warehousing act so that reserves of feed, such as corn, can be carried on the farm.

We have learned from painful experience that the overfilled crib may quickly become the empty crib. It is to the advantage of both the producer and the consumer—and the farmer is BOTH when it comes to feed crops—that these conditions be evened out as much as possible.

Under this same amendment the farmer who stores his grain on the farm, in such a way as to make it insurable, will be entitled to a federal warehouse receipt. He then will be eligible to borrow from any banking agency.

He will enjoy the same credit facilities as are available to owners of grain stored in terminal markets.

The grain would be stored on the farm, ready for use or sale at any time the farmer cares to take up the loan.

I am now going to mention a subject that is in neither platform—crop insurance. It is a question in which we have long been interested in Kansas.

In fact, some of our Republican leaders in farm legislation have been in the forefront in working on it. We realize that there are difficulties. But insurance companies are writing policies today covering risks that they did not consider feasible a few years ago.

I believe that the question of crop insurance should be given the fullest attention.

We need also to resume our once remarkable progress in introducing new crops for the use of our lands. This work seems to have slowed down. Yet it is exactly what the department of agriculture should now be pushing.

Not only must we take care of the problems of the land, but we must develop more domestic demand and different uses for the products of the land.

I am far more interested in seeing farmers paid for growing the things we know we need, than in paying them for not growing the things we think we don't need.

Most of us co-operated with the triple A in its early days, since we had been promised it was only an emergency measure. It was the only important agency working for the relief of the farm at that time, and it was entitled to a fair trial.

Lord of Own Farm

But as the program progressed, we discovered that the administration was trying to stretch the triple A into a means for the permanent control of American agriculture from Washington. I cannot agree with such a policy. I cannot agree with the President. I believe the American farmer should be "a lord on his own farm."

We were promised that the triple A would be placed by a sound, long-time program.

But instead, after crop reduction we had crop adjustment, then more crop shifting under the soil conservation and domestic allotment act. The conservation plan was not conservation.

It was a stop-gap, a subterfuge. Any one going through the present mixup in an effort to qualify for a check will agree with me. Nobody was fooled, least of all the farmer.

Now something else has just been announced. Like the automobile manufacturers, the administration believes in bringing out a new model every year.

What is the farm policy of this administration? In my opinion it has none. After being in power for nearly four years, the administration is still without a settled, workable, national policy for agriculture. It's right back where it started from.

Soil conservation—real conservation—is a subject close to my heart. In Kansas we link soil conservation with water conservation and flood control into a co-related program.

More than two years ago I suggested to the present administration a comprehensive program to be administered through joint state and federal action. I requested that the federal government take leadership in these policies as a part of its drouth program.

This was not done, but in Kansas we went ahead anyway, making effective use of federal funds provided for work relief, by building ponds, by digging public wells for farms, and constructing a statewide system of lakes and municipal reservoirs.

Real Start

This work, backed by sound land policies has given Kansas a real start in the direction of conservation. Of course much remained to be done. But we know, as a result of this experience, that there is such a thing as spending money wisely.

It will be my purpose to co-operate with the states in putting into effect a real conservation program along broad lines. But we will not do this at the expense of dairy and livestock producers.

Where the farmer is unable to afford proper conservation practices, cash payments should be made for actual performance. There should be state participation in the program, with the local administration in the hands of farmers themselves.

Conservation is an inseparable part of a national land-use program. Through such a program we can bring our farm plant into proper balance and gradually shape our land resources to their right uses.

The program we propose will put an end to the policies of this administration of trading off the American farmer. It will make unnecessary giving away the equivalent of 25,000,000 acres to foreigners.

It will prevent the importation of pork products from 16 different countries.

It will eliminate all excuse for paying $785,000,000 in one year to a sugar corporation, or $155,000 to a packing company for its hog operations, or $301,000 to a British-owned cotton company.

And no longer will it be possible for a corporation farmer to rent government-controlled Indian land and get $51,000 subsidy, or for a garbage feeder to get 100 times as much as a good corn belt farmer.

Tax Dangers

There is one more important point in our program I wish to emphasize. This is, that we shall "free the farm and the rest of the country from the impending dangers of ruinous debt and taxation."

All of you know the rate at which government spending is going on. The national debt has now reached the stupendous figure of 34 billion dollars and it is increasing every minute.

Let us look at this proposition candidly. This increasing debt can be paid only by taxation if this is to remain an honest government. Taxes add to the cost of everything and the farmer is so situated that he cannot escape their penalty.

Further, the taxes reduce the ability of the consumer to buy the products of the farm. The Republican party proposes to put an end to the present waste and extravagance.

So much for the main provisions of the program which we propose for American agriculture.

It is a program based upon the same principles that farmers have urged for years.

It follows in the same furrows that were plowed at the meetings of the corn belt committee here in Des Moines.

It offers a practical means to attain what we have been seeking—a free and independent agriculture.

Today, 42 farms out of every 100 are operated by tenants. Our national welfare demands that the situation be corrected. If history teaches us anything it teaches that the stability of civilization depends upon ownership of the land by the man who works the land.

It is our pledge to extend within the limits of sound finance adequate credit at reasonable rates to capable tenants and experienced farmers for the purchase or refinancing of farm homes.

U. S. Tradition

You will see that everything I have said points to but one end—that is, the protection of the family-type farm. This philosophy runs like a thread through the Republican platform.

It is in keeping with the American tradition, which is based upon preserving individual opportunity. But you will not find it even mentioned in the platform of the opposing party.

The provision of adequate credit at reasonable rates that I have just mentioned will encourage farm ownership. Our program of conservation will enable the man living on his own land to maintain the productivity of that land and thereby remain a self-supporting citizen.

Our cash benefits, as I said, will be limited to the production level of the family-type farm.

The Republican party, in other words, does not believe in having our farms operated by large corporate enterprises.

It is our conviction that it is the duty of the government to preserve the family type of farm for all time—preserve it as a home and as a source of livelihood.

We should make it possible for the farm wife to enjoy the comforts of modern labor-saving devices.

We should make it possible for farm children to have the same educational opportunities as city children.

We should make it possible for our boys and girls of the 4-H Clubs and vocational classes to inherit an agriculture worthy of their ideals and aspirations.

The security of our social and economic system does not rest upon the foundation of a few great enterprises. It rests upon our having millions and millions of individual farmers and home-owners.

These are the people that give us our spirit of independence as a nation. We must not let them be driven to the wall!

Airmail Contracts

PROMISE:

"The simple fact is that from records taken from the files of the Post Office Department, from the files of airmail contractors, themselves, and from evidence produced before the Senate Investigating Committee, it was clearly shown that these contracts were given and obtained through collusion and fraud. . . .

"If this Administration was going to keep faith with the people, these fraudulent contracts had to be wiped out."

POSTMASTER GENERAL FARLEY,
Wilmington, Del., March 20, 1935.

PERFORMANCE:

On Feb. 9, 1934, Postmaster General Farley cancelled all domestic governmental airmail contracts. This was done without hearings. The cancellation became effective upon ten days' notice rather than upon sixty days' notice as required by the Independent Offices' Appropriation Act of June 16, 1933.

On the same day, by Executive order, President Roosevelt commanded the Army to fly the airmail.

Twelve Army fliers lost their lives in pursuance of this order.

The cost of Army operation of the airmail was $3,700,000.

The Department of Justice, after a lapse of more than two years, has failed to bring indictments against the aviation companies for the collusion and fraud alleged by the Postmaster General in his speech of March 20, 1934.

Who Keeps Them Idle, Industry or Roosevelt?

In January, 1935, President Roosevelt said that all the needy employable persons in the United States numbered 8,500,000. With $4,800,000,000, which he got, he promised to provide each of these with work.

Between January, 1935, and March, 1936, private industry gave jobs to hundreds of thousands of American workers.

Yet in March, 1936, President Roosevelt had added 300,000 persons to his list of needy employables. He asked and got another $1,500,000,000 for 3,800,000 needy employables.

Why are the people of New York City paying $50,000,000 a year in sales taxes to take care of 150,000 jobless workers?

Why haven't they got the Works Progress Administration jobs which President Roosevelt promised and for which New York is paying in federal taxes?

Fall Guise!

Style Ideas Chosen

Autumn Gets Official Welcome; Fashions Fit Weather

Autumn clothes for town and country were modeled and discussed at the Fashion Congress in the Ritz-Carlton Hotel today.

The fall season was officially greeted as the mannequins displayed a brilliant offering of newest end of summer costumes. The best ensembles from the point of view of good taste as well as style, were awarded the black and silver tag of the Congress.

Mrs. T. Barnet Plimpton, well-dressed society matron, was chairman of the smart fashion jury.

The other judges were Mrs. Frank Jenkens, Mrs. Amy Sarks, Mrs. Gardner Bullard, Mrs. Ralph Pope, Mrs. Albert Russo, Countess Pazzppi, Mrs. Russell Paris, Mrs. Norman H. Smith, Miss Henrietta Plimpton, and Mrs. Winthrop Brown.

The socialite mannequins chosen to model at the session were Miss Lee Sirgesson, Miss Sally Scudder, Miss Doris Polaski and Miss Blanche O'Rourke.

New ideas in silhouettes, textures and details, were greeted unhesitatingly by the aristocratic body of the judges. Aubergine and taupe, luminous wine shades, were the outstanding color successes. Black, of course, won its share of praise as a perennial fall favorite.

Miss Annice Brink, fashion editor of the American, was commentator and led the fashion discussion.

Photographs of the Fashion Congress selections will appear daily in the fashion pages of the Boston Evening American and Sunday Advertiser.

Bail Is Refused For Don Burdick

Norwalk, Conn., Sept. 23 (AP)—Attorney Raymond E. Hackett requested Don Burdick be discharged, with intent to murder, his 70-year-old father-in-law, Harry E. Byram, of Westport, announced today he had raised $6000 of the $12,000 bond demanded for Burdick's release, but it was refused.

'Dead' Girl Found Alive; Believed Perished in Fire

Believed dead and buried for nearly three years, an Almeno, N. Y., girl "resurrected" from the grave today in Dixon, Rockford County, intimate friend and two insurance companies announced. The mysterious identity of a young woman who perished in a Pittsfield fire in 1933.

The supposedly dead girl, Anna Rita Conley, 18, was found in New York city by her foster mother and has been taken back to the family home in Albany.

Meanwhile, in a lonely grave in St. Agnes Cemetery, Arbania, lies the body of a young woman, burned to death in 1933, under the hands stated, the remains are those of Anna Rita Conley.

District Attorney Hayes W. Conway of Berkshire County, amazed at the startling story, declared today that his office would take further action to ascertain the identity of the dead girl.

PLANS PROBE

He plans to seek exhumation of the body buried in the Albany Cemetery and a thorough investigation of the three-year-old fire.

Pittsfield police declared the strange return of the girl justified the theory they have always held that the victim of the fire was not Miss Conley, but a Miss Mary Burns, of Syracuse, N. Y.

Two insurance companies, one of which paid a $2000 policy to the foster mother of Miss Conley, are interested in the case.

At her Albany home the foster mother, Mrs. Michael Conley, overjoyed at the girl's return, said she would gladly repay the money received from the insurance companies.

Miss Conley was arrested at the revelation that she was reported dead, and for the first time made known the fact that she had left Pittsfield just before the fire, which she supposedly perished.

LETTER FINDS GIRL

It was also made known that she was brought back from the dead through a letter which her foster mother received during the past week.

The letter, seemingly from the grave, instructed the family to rent an advertisement in a New York city newspaper. If they forgive her and allowed her to return home.

Shaken by the miraculous gift, apparently sent from the beyond, the foster mother followed instructions and her foster-daughter and sister returned to New York to keep a rendezvous.

Troopers Capture Fugitive Youth

East Brookfield, Sept. 23—Captured at gunpoint after a struggle in Kenneth W. Bissell, 19, of Webster Street, Worcester, who escaped with another youth from Concord Reformatory on September 12, today was apprehended by two state troopers here.

Working on a tip, Corporal John Burke and Trooper Victor Nelson went to a lonely cottage on the shore of Lake Lashaway.

Breaking in the door they surprised Bissell who was asleep. Bissell fought Nelson and made a dash for the door but was subdued after a tussle as the troopers drew their revolvers.

Bannister Boys Pay Price

Daniel Bannister Arthur Bannister

The law got its price for murder today. Daniel Bannister and his brother Arthur paid with their lives for killing Philip Lake, a squatter, in the sensational New Brunswick kidnaping case, which involved their mother, too. The brothers were hanged in Dorchester, N. B.

NOOSE Tight, Halts PRAYER

2 BANNISTER BOYS HANGED

Special to the Boston Evening American

Dorchester, N. B., Sept. 23—Strapped back to back, twin nooses round their necks, the Bannister brothers were hanged today at Dorchester Jail.

"It's too tight. I can't pray," Daniel, 20, complained as the hangman fixed the knotted noose beneath his jaw. Arthur, 19, was silent.

At 2:05 a. m. the pair were standing on a wooden frame, covering a yawning hole dug through the jail's concrete floor. At 2:06 they were dangling through that hole, jerking convulsively at the end of two ropes. At 2:27 they were cut down—dead

In One Coffin

Still strapped together, the bodies were placed in a rude pine box, covered with a black cloth. Deputies nailed the cover down, then lowered the single coffin into a grave in the prison yard.

They used the same ropes to lower the pine box that had been used to strangle that boy's freight a few minutes before.

Thus was the supreme price paid for the murders of Phillip Lake, his common-law wife and their 21-months old son, Jack, who died in the backwoods, in the dead of winter, innocent victims of the Bannister "doll baby" plot.

Lake and his wife died, and their baby was left to die, when the Bannister brothers kidnaped the Lakes' four-months-old daughter so that their mother could have a baby to show two men she accused of attacking her, the crown claimed.

The mother, Mrs. May Bannister, is serving 3½ years in Kingston penitentiary for "harboring a kidnaped child."

Fifteen-year-old Frances Bannister, sister of the hanged youths, is facing a charge of abducting the baby. Her trial is set for Friday.

The double-hanging today was the first in the country since 1924, when four men were executed for murdering a bank holdup.

Those four died in the same fashion as the Bannisters today, two at a time, strapped back to back. And with the nooses "too tight."

It was not until late yesterday that the two brothers knew they were to be hanged this morning. They didn't seem especially concerned then, jail attaches said.

At 10 p. m. they had their last visitors—their father and two sisters, one of them Frances. The imprisoned mother was denied a plea to visit the doomed youths.

"All Innocent"

The visitors were allowed to remain for some time. Just before they left, 19-year-old Arthur told Frances:

"Keep up your courage, and I hope nothing happens in your trial. Remember, you're just as innocent as we are. We're all paying for something somebody else did."

That was the defense the brothers made at their separate trials, but the Crown established for their juries that Mrs. Bannister had told two Moncton men she was about to become a mother last summer, demanding they pay her for the child's support.

The Crown established that subsequently Mrs. Bannister walked through the streets holding what appeared to be a baby, but which was afterwards determined to have been a large doll.

When it appeared that the hoax might become known to the men in question, the Crown charged, the Bannisters were driven to desperation to obtain a real baby.

The tragedy of the backwoods followed. The Lakes were murdered, their baby was kidnaped to replace the doll.

'One Case In 5000' Expected To Live

Science Saves Baby From 'Mercy Death'

This Soundphoto brings from Chicago picture of Mr. and Mrs. Julian Tafel, Jr., and their infant whose life was saved when surgeon performed a delicate operation. The mother's insistence, backed by legal opinion, compelled the father to consent to the operation.

(International News Soundphoto)

Doctor Foils Nature; Operation Success

Chicago, Sept. 23 (US)—Saving a blue-eyed baby boy from a "mercy death," science lifted the hand of nature which had misshaped the infant at its birth six days ago and marked it for death.

Overcoming objections of the baby's father who for days opposed the surgery, Dr. Lewis K. Eastman performed a delicate operation at American Hospital and announced:

"The child will live."

"Thank God," sobbed the 22-fant.

And her husband, Julian Tafel, garage mechanic, wept with her, happy that he had finally given permission for the operation he had resisted in the fear his son would be condemned to lifelong invalidism and would "curse us for letting him live under a handicap."

In seventeen minutes Dr. Eastman remedied the abnormality which had provided the baby with no fecal outlet and doomed him to death from starvation.

Only Chance

A colostomy was performed under a local anesthetic, with a heart stimulant fortifying the infant. The long bowel was brought out to the surface of the abdominal wall and an opening provided.

Before the operation, Dr. Eastman admitted there was a fifty-fifty chance that death would result. But after the surgery he said there is little fear now of fatal consequences.

After days of pleading by the mother who bore the malformed infant, the father finally gave reluctant consent to the operation which physicians urged as the only chance to save the baby.

Wearily, he said:

"All right—go ahead and operate."

A few minutes before he relented from stony refusal, he had said:

"The lord made the baby that way and meant to take him back."

But the mother sobbed:

"I brought him into the world, I want him to live."

The baby, named Julian Tafel, Jr., was born Thursday at Danish-American Hospital. The parents have another child, Cornelia, two and a half years old.

Once in 5000

As interest in the fate of the baby spread throughout the world, Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the American Medical Association Journal, said that malformations of the kind afflicting Julian occur about once in every 5000 births. He added:

"The first case of its kind on record occurred in the seventh century, and the operation was performed by a man named Paulus. The operation was a success."

Following the operation, Dr. Eastman pronounced the child out of danger and said:

"What we did today was merely a life-saving operation, preliminary to others. We will continue the correctional process in about two months with another operation."

'WASHES' Dog, Fined $15

TOM GILLIGAN APPEALS

Thomas "Tommy" Gilligan, 29, of Madison avenue, Newtonville, former Harvard football star, and now a federal agent with the alcoholic tax unit, was fined $15 in Waltham District Court today on a charge of washing his dog in a state reservoir.

The charge, alleged to be in violation of the Metropolitan District Commission rules, was brought on the complaint of Gordon Desmond, a special officer and foreman at the Ash street reservoir, Weston.

Before Judge P. Sarsfield Cunniff, Desmond testified that Gilligan, on September 14, threw sticks into the water which were retrieved by Gilligan's dog.

The special officer further testified that when he approached Gilligan and asked for his name and address at the same time displaying his police badge, Gilligan allegedly replied

"That's a piece of tin, it doesn't mean anything."

Two other workmen at the reservoir, Joseph H. Brennan and Arthur Thivierge, corroborated Desmond's testimony.

Taking the stand, Gilligan denied the dog went into the water and told Judge Cunniff:

"I'm willing to take a test made by throwing sticks into the water to see if the dog goes after them."

Judge Cunniffe refused to allow such a test and imposed the fine. Gilligan appealed and was released in $100 bail.

HIGH COURT STOPS M'GLUE BATTLE AGAINST O'BRIEN

J. McAniffe of New Bedford, seeking the congressional post in the 12th district, and Nelson F. Wright of Medford, candidate for Congress in the eighth district.

OVER McGLUE'S HEAD

All four candidates insure a definite split among Democratic voters, and the most important phase of this is that the O'Brien injunction paves the way.

Most important in the issuance of the O'Brien injunction was the fact that Justice Qua was told by Assistant Attorney-General James J. Ronan that the state—balancing the ballot law commissioners' "gentlemen's agreement" had been made to depend on the protest against O'Brien's papers.

This was a direct blow at Chairman Charles H. McGlue, who had ordered certification of the O'Brien papers, according to reports, despite the action last night of Fielding's attorney, calling for a hearing this past Tuesday.

Justice Qua's restraining order is in effect until Tuesday, when, it is said, McGlue first refused to credit the attorney-general's office with the right to give him advice. Then he capitulated, but not gracefully.

THIRD SLAP AT DEAL

By observers, the action of Assistant Attorney-General Ronan was seen to have been with the approval of Attorney-General Dever, especially as Dever was standing outside the courtroom when the O'Brien controversy was taking place.

It was regarded as the third definite step within six days at the New Deal wing of the Democratic party, which climaxed in the state by Governor Curley.

Dever first threw the gauntlet down last Thursday when he insisted that Metropolitan District Water Supply Commissioner Eugene C. Hultman testify to a talk Hultman had with Governor Curley in an agreement Assistant Attorney-General Henry P. Fielding made yesterday when O'Brien filed equity petition aimed at the ballot law commissioners passing on his candidacy, morning newspapers have quoted McGlue as having said he would continue hearing the O'Brien case today.

The court pondered the charge and Assistant Attorney General Ronan stood up. He offered to get Fielding on the telephone as the state was not formally represented. He left the room, returned in a few minutes and said:

"Whatever agreement was made with Mr. Fielding will be kept."

"How does that suit you, Mr. Caro?" the court asked.

"Not at all," Caro replied, explaining that he disliked the qualification "whatever," inasmuch as it was no admission.

Justice Qua then issued the injunction against the commission as a body. But it had been noted that Attorney General Dever had been outside the courtroom when Ronan left it, and that Ronan made no argument on the injunction order.

Fielding appeared a few moments after the injunction was issued. He did nothing to affect it.

Then reporters raced to McGlue's office to ask him if he had heard the news.

McGLUE FINALLY OBEYS

He said he was going ahead with the commission's business until he received written notification of the supreme court order.

This was after he had heard of the injunction through the attorney-general's office, according to reports. And this was construed as unusual, to say the least.

Nevertheless, a short time afterwards, McGlue halted the commission's hearing on some minor ballot protests and announced a recess until tomorrow.

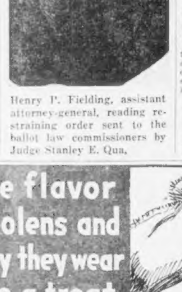
"I am not insisting on going ahead with any hearing the court is acting upon," he said. "But I understand that the duties of this commission call for deciding forthwith on matters under protest and this duty calls for immediate action on all protests.

"GO AHEAD TOMORROW"

"Unless the supreme court seeks to restrain the commission from hearing all matters, it is clearly the duty of the commission to proceed."

McGlue then made reference to two cases where, before primaries, candidates had complained to the courts that the ballot law commission wasn't acting quickly enough in their cases.

"Except for the cases of Mayor Greenwood of Fitchburg, Mr. O'Brien and the other three cases we have no knowledge of any other proceedings, so we will go ahead tomorrow," McGlue concluded.



Henry P. Fielding, assistant attorney-general, reading restraining order sent to the ballot law commissioners by Judge Stanley E. Qua.

In Thick of State's Hot Political Fight

'Dropping Hot Potatoes,' G.O.P. Leader Says of Curley

Commenting today on Attorney-General Dever's opinion that the Quabbin "gift" contracts were illegal, Sinclair Weeks, chairman of the Republican state committee, declared the development was another illustration of "how quick Governor Curley is in dropping hot potatoes."

"Governor Curley," said Chairman Weeks, "in the face of an aroused public opinion quickly abandoned his dictatorial plans to control the courts of Massachusetts by removing elderly judges. Now, again, in the face of an aroused and irate public, he gives another illustration of his agility in dropping hot potatoes.

"The Quabbin 'gift' contracts were too raw a piece of administration daring for even a Democratic attorney general to swallow, especially at a time when he is seeking re-election.

"In plain language, Mr. Dever refused to hold in his lap by his official approval, 'a serious breach of public trust' and 'an inexcusable waste of public funds.' This 'breach' was arranged by a commission controlled by the governor, with the exception of the courageous Republican chairman, Eugene C. Hultman, whom he tried to remove in opera bouffe proceedings some months back."

Mrs. Barr Grills Ex-Husband in $100,000 Suit

Concord, N. H., Sept. 23—For three more hours today, James Cummings Barr, 69-year-old Boston railway supplies magnate was questioned on the witness stand by his divorced wife, Mrs. Lelia Fairfield Barr,, 63, prominent in Boston, New York and Washington society.

Acting as her own counsel, Mrs. Barr is trying her $100,000 suit against Barr, in which she seeks to recover for allege gloss of health and of personal property.

She claims her health has been broken because her former husband refuses her valuable personal belongings and has permitted Mrs. Anne S. Rogers of Boston and her daughter to use them at the Barr summer estate in New Ipswich.

Going into her eighth year of court-battling with her ex-husband —she began in 1928 with the suit for divorce—Mrs. Barr today produced 15 more letters and telegrams in federal court.

These, she declared, constituted part of correspondence passing between her husband and herself relative to property she claims.

Although rebuked several times by the court for irregular procedure, Mrs. Barr was the winner on points in several bouts with opposing counsel, Thomas J. Leonard or Nashua, member of the governor's counsel.

Most of the court rulings were in her favor.

Dickover, answering her screams, grappled with the invader and was stabbed in the left arm with a dagger. His wound is believed not serious.

M'DONALD DEMANDS CURLEY OUST KELLEY, LAVELLE

Norman MacDonald, executive director of the Massachusetts Taxpayers Association, Inc., demanded today that Governor Curley remove Commissioners Kelley and Lavelle from the Metropolitan water supply and Metropolitan district commissions.

"Gov. Curley has no other course, if he had any intention of acting in the public interest," MacDonald stated, "except to act at once for the removal of Kelley and Lavelle, whose votes were responsible for the gross breach of public trust in award of certain contracts.

"If the governor felt himself justified in acting for the removal of Boston Finance Commissioners Storey and Donahue, Alexander Lincoln o the Tax Appeal Board, Chairman Hultman of the Metropolitan District Commission and others, he must either take similar action against Lavelle and Kelley, who have clearly demonstrated their unfitness for the office they hold, or he must lend further credence to the sworn testimony of Chairman Hultman before the Attorney-General that Curley demanded of him, Hultman, the award of these contracts to the Two Companies, Inc., and Cemdella & Co.

"To express this point of view probably is to give voice to a vain hope because in spite of the fact that the Attorney-General's inquiry was directly in response to a petition of the Massachusetts Federation of Taxpayers Associations, His Excellency is already trying to claim credit for it.

"Massachusetts knows very well that unless the organized taxpayers of the state had acted, the governor would have stuck to his earlier statement that he was glad the contracts had been awarded."

Advertised Bidding Sought in Bill

Representative Thomas E. Barry, of East Boston, today filed a bill to be brought before the next session of the Legislature requiring all bids for the contracts in the Water Supply Commission to be advertised publicly as suggested in Attorney-General Dever's report.

Said Barry:

"The apparent laxity on the part of the Metropolitan Water Supply Commission in the handling and spending of public funds, warrants the enactment of this act which advocates the advertising of bids publicly and a final written award on all contracts over $1000."

NEWSPAPER ADS AID SALES OF INSURANCE

Henry M. Powell, general agent for the State Mutual Life Assurance Company of Atlanta, Ga., today urged the National Association of Life Underwriters to employ newspaper advertising as a means of greatly advancing its progress.

He pointed out as an example that when he first started in the business he undertook a three-column newspaper advertisement at an expenditure of $1000 a week, or $2000 for the entire week.

It brought him in in such a gross of about $21,000 in business leaving him a profit of $10,000 for the year.

CUPS PRESENTED

Speaking also at today's session in Horse Shoe Inn, Powell presented gold loving cups to Thomas White, Baton Rouge, La., president of the New York Life Insurance Company, and Austin S. Garver, of San Diego, Cal., president of the Federal Mutual Life Insurance Company.

The cups were given to the men in recognition of their work in the life insurance business which has increased tremendously during the past year.

WAGES U. S. TRIBUTE

Prior to the formal opening of Vivian Anderson, president of the Atlanta Life Insurance Company and president of the National Association of Life Underwriters, in an interview with the Boston Evening American, declared that the greatest financial increase in the cost of living has been in the cost of life insurance.

"Every life insurance holder in the United States," he said, "should make himself heard in demanding that governmental expenses be slashed and the budget balanced."

Banker Shows FHA Aids Lender Only

Unless Congress grants the executive power, the Federal Housing Administrator will be a dictator and a one-man foreclosure agency of mortgaged property, Judge Ralph M. Smith, president of the Massachusetts Co-operative Bank League said today.

Judge Smith, who was of the opinion that the powers of the Federal Housing Administrator will be used more in the New York Metropolitan area, said:

"The power of the Federal Housing Administrator is dangerous. To the average lay mind, he is said:

"The FHA is not, as you may recall, in any way subject to the control of the Federal Home Loan Board.

"The Federal Housing Administration at Washington is its sole boss, responsible to no one except the President.

"The FHA, as you are aware, is not a lending agency. Bankers know that fact very well, but a large part of the public has gained the wrong impression.

"Under the mutual mortgage insurance plan, the lender is not subject to any loss. The borrower, not the lender, pays the premium.

"The mutual mortgage insurance plan has been smooth, and the public thinks that a home is something to secure himself a real benefit.

"He pays a premium to protect him from loss by fire, or to protect his family in case of death.

"If he borrows money for a home and pays a premium to insure a mortgage, naturally he thinks that insurance will protect him from loss by foreclosure.

"That attitude is wrong, Judge Smith said. The borrower, not the lender, pays the premium. The borrower, not the lender, has title to the property. The borrower, not the lender, has equity in the property. The borrower, not the lender, has to pay taxes on the property. The borrower, not the lender, has to pay insurance premiums on the property. The borrower, not the lender, has to pay interest on the mortgage. The borrower, not the lender, has to pay principal on the mortgage. The borrower, not the lender, has to pay for repairs on the property. The borrower, not the lender, has to pay for improvements on the property. The borrower, not the lender, has to pay for everything on the property.

Don't Poison Baby
Through Your Constipation

Nursing mothers must avoid constipation. Slow bowel movements allow poisons to form and be absorbed by the blood. This means tainted milk for baby.

Mothers are the best friends of Nujol. When precious new lives are at stake they use and give their babies Nujol—the remedy medical authorities prescribe because it is so safe, so gentle, and so natural in its action.

Constipation is dangerous for anybody. Nujol is safe for everybody. It does not affect the stomach and is not absorbed by the body.

Nujol makes up for a deficiency of natural lubricant in the intestines. It softens the waste matter and thus permits thorough and regular bowel movements without griping.

Do It With Mirrors

Feminine Solomon Smartens Aides

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

As woman to women, a successful woman life insurance underwriter today urged her colleagues to install a full-length mirror in their homes as a requisite adjunct to their success.

Frank, but necessary advice, from Dorothea Jones, of 2656 York street (it is also pointed out that need for every woman underwriter to raise herself from top to toe before attempting to conquer the unconverted).

An evident example of success herself and a fashion plate in a seemingly all green, no skin, dress around the women delegates to the 38th annual convention of the National Association of the Host Institute Miss Jones said:

"If I had the financial resources, I would equip each of the 38 women working for me in my agency with a full-length mirror, that she might see herself from top to toe before she starts out in the morning to sell insurance.

"Women should not sell insurance on the basis of sex appeal or as a pants dress. But women should look capable and like successful business women before they start to be that."

Miss Jones, a dimpled feminine member of underwriters board of directors, is a graduate of Simmons.

Then explained her statement.

Most ladies do not succeed in business in the New York Life Insurance Company, Newly-wed up and coming insurance agents are guided by a real talk to the women's group at the convention, looked as she addressed the gentlemen and many said "theory as "no husband."

"I don't hold to the belief that if you work hard, you'll be successful. I don't believe that if you say enough people and walk enough miles, success will naturally follow. That's bunk.

"I point to psychologists who now say that practice does not make perfect, that there is just as much chance that practice will make imperfect as perfect.

"If you practice in the wrong rhythm, no matter if you work 48 or 72 hours a day, you won't succeed.

"I have been making my own living for 20 years. I have met two kinds of women, especially—those who work hard and those who look as if they work hard.

"When a woman looks busy, rushing here and there, helter-skelter, she is officious. And when I go to my grave that is one word I don't want used about me.

"The older I grow, the more I become convinced of the truth of that biblical saying: 'With all thy getting, get thee first understanding.'"

Clears Officers On Store Holdup

Acquittal orders of Police Edward W. Fallon today exonerated two officers of the Brighton station who had allegedly responded into the holding of a drug store after receiving the call from headquarters.

The officers, Edward S. Sheehan and John Edwards were directing traffic at a school crossing when the call came in their radio car. The incident arose after a man had escaped with $15 after holding up the manager of a Commonwealth avenue, Brighton, chain store.

URGES DEMAND FOR ECONOMY

"Every life insurance holder in the United States should make himself heard in demanding that governmental expenses be slashed and the budget balanced."

Such was the warning today of C. Vivian Anderson, of Cincinnati, past president of the National Association of Life Underwriters now in convention here.

In a special interview with a Boston American reporter, Anderson declared the present artificial increase in the cost of living has been harmful to present insurance beneficiaries.

"The insurance companies themselves," he said emphatically, "are prefectly sound.

"The real threat today is the decreased purchasing power of a life insurance benefit if the present policies of government finance are continued.

"Moreover, the greatest obstacle to increase in the writing of new life insurance lies in the unbalanced national budget and the unwarranted expenditures by the national government.

"I believe the public has been aroused to the dangers of this national spending to such an extent that the growing deficit must, of necessity, be curbed.

"If national spending increases there is the real danger that people will adopt the attitude of 'spending today' because of their uncertainty as to the future.

"For if governmental spending mounts as its present rate it will constitute a very real threat to the purchasing power of tomorrow's life insurance beneficiaries.

The Public has a right to know these facts

Have the differences in cigarette manufacture any relation to coughs due to smoking? A group of doctors sought to find that out for themselves.

They made tests with Philip Morris Cigarettes, and cigarettes made by the ordinary method of manufacture.

In 3 out of every 4 cases, smokers' coughs cleared completely on changing to Philip Morris. And watch this: on changing back to cigarettes made by the ordinary method, coughs promptly returned in a large number of cases.*

On such conclusive evidence, you can smoke Philip Morris freely. Smoke them for good taste, as well . . . for their robust, full-flavored tobaccos.

√ Philip Morris & Company do not claim that Philip Morris Cigarettes cure irritation. But they do say that an ingredient—a source of irritation in other cigarettes—is not used in the manufacture of Philip Morris.

LEGION HEARS ADDRESSES BY HINES, GREEN

Cleveland, Sept. 23 (AP)—The parading plastique of the American Legion eased their weary bodies at the welcoming oath of Public Auditorium today for the tedious business of their 18th annual national convention.

Addresses by General Frank T. Hines, U. S. veterans' administrator, and William Green, American Federation of Labor president, were among several awaiting the tired Legionnaires, who marched more than 11 hours yesterday in a colorful spectacle which National Commander Ray Murphy described as "the greatest parade in the history of the Legion."

Legion officials said 70,000 were in the line of march—80 per cent of them in uniform—and that the number was far greater than ever paraded before. The line continued from 10 a. m. yesterday until 9:25 p. m. last night.

PICK 1937 CITY

Even then, like the ebb tide of a lively sea, the huge crowd that came to see the Legion on display, variously estimated at between 300,000 and 500,000 persons, swirled and eddied through downtown streets until long after midnight.

Some dozen committee reports on national defense, foreign relations, Americanism and associated themes were on the docket for today.

Other items of business were selection of a 1937 convention city and addresses by Orville G. Pratt, president of the National Education association; J. E. Rankin, chairman of the House committee on World War Veterans' Legislation, and John J. Hall on "highway safety."

RIFLE DRILL CONTEST

The drum and bugle corps event got under way at 9 a. m. in Cleveland Stadium, where the Legion's big parade finished up last night, and the qualifiers from a field of 68 units were to compete in the finals tonight.

The rifle drill contest, scheduled today, found seven teams competing: Buffalo Post No. 665; Milwaukee Post No. 228; Woodlawn Post No. 313, of Chicago; Beverly Hills Post No. 407, of Chicago; Roland Post No. 258, of Buffalo; Wollaston, Mass., Post No. 295, and South Buffalo, N. Y., Post No. 721.

Roosevelt Red Link Irks Legion Men

Cleveland, Sept. 23—Disclosure that President Roosevelt is obtaining the support of Communist leaders in his campaign for re-election met with indignant comment today from members of the American Legion convention.

Representative Chester Bolton, of Ohio, declared:

"Evidence of Communist approval of Roosevelt is a further indication of the un-American philosophy underlying the administration."

Hanford MacNider, former minister to Canada and former national commander of the American Legion:

"Veterans and all good citizens should be on their guard against subversive efforts to control our institutions. The American Legion is a consistent foe of Communism and always will be."

William Stearns, Legion committeeman, of Fargo, N. D.:

"Earl Browder, the Communist candidate for the presidency, has in recent radio speeches discouraged even his own supporters from voting for him and has asked them to oppose Governor Landon."

Reed Says Radical Moves 'Calculated To Aid Roosevelt'

Kansas City, Mo., Sept. 23—Former United States Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, an outstanding Democrat, declared in a statement here today:

"There is no question in the minds of those who are informed with reference to current political events that every radical movement is calculated to support Mr. Roosevelt.

"All of the Reds, all of the extreme radicals, are trying to defeat Landon. They may employ different methods but that is their objective.

"There is no question in my mind but that we have an element in this country who are associated with the international revolutionists and that they are securing aid from foreign revolutionary groups and governments.

"If Roosevelt is re-elected, these men who have already greatly influenced his policies will dominate and our country will be plunged into a radicalism which will either eventuate as Bolshevism or will be a long drive in that direction.

"The defeat of Roosevelt and his cohorts will arrest the present dangerous movement and restore law, order and sanity."

Socialist Flays Communism

Thomas Says Reds Back Roosevelt

the Communists are giving Roosevelt a left-handed but active support. They are in it—the campaign. We don't have to prove it through secret documents. It's just so."

Thomas made this statement amplifying his views on Communism and the presidential campaign after addressing 300 members of the National Press Club at luncheon yesterday.

Opposes Violence

The former clergyman declared his opposition to the international aspect of Communism, in which Moscow seeks to influence other countries to adopt Communism for the benefit of Russia.

In reply to questions that Thomas turned to his attack on Communism after describing the "capitalistic" theories of both the Democratic and Republican presidential candidates.

Asked the difference between Communism and Socialism, Thomas said:

"My main quarrel with Communism is that it denies all civil rights. I am opposed to its violence and assassinations."

Thomas said two years ago the Communists had fought Roosevelt but now they had changed and had become more adroit by supporting him.

The Socialist leader declared:

"I am not concerned in the methods by which Earl Browder, Communist candidate for President, who would have you vote for him and at the same time not defeat Roosevelt."

Thomas decried the so-called "blood purge" in Russia following the Kirov murder, in which several score of persons were reported slain and the murder convictions of another large group following the Zinoviev assassination.

Emphasizing the swing of the Communists toward Roosevelt, Thomas said the Communist organ in America, the Daily Worker:

"Is awkwardly and shyly kissing Roosevelt."

Thomas also revealed that several hundred Socialists have resigned from his party to support Roosevelt, adding:

"That goes to show that even Socialists can have a relapse."

Questioned as to who would win the presidential election, Thomas replied:

"I should be most surprised if Roosevelt did not win handily, but then what?"

Thomas flayed Roosevelt, Governor Alfred M. Landon, the Republican candidate, and Representative Lemke of North Dakota, and the Townsendites, Coughlinites and followers of Gerald L. K. Smith.

Asserting that Roosevelt had not been explicit about his future plans, Thomas said:

"Really there is not much left of the old New Deal, except atmosphere. We are having some temporary recovery, but we will learn that we can't spend ourselves out of depressions."

Failure Confession

Thomas branded the Roosevelt relief program as "extravagant and badly organized" and declared the new farm program a confession of failure of the old program.

Thomas said the Roosevelt legislative program has been "makeshift" and most of it had been outlawed by the Supreme Court, and that the administration now was operating on:

"Faith, hope and charity, mostly charity taken away from taxpayers.

"It is just coasting along. Within a few years a country burdened with debt, production increasing more rapidly than wages, we are headed for a new and catastrophic depression."

Thomas said the "era of capitalism" had passed throughout the world, and America was faced with a choice of Socialistic cooperative commonwealth or Fascism. He predicted if the latter came a "demagogue" would be succeded by a dictator.

Asserting that he was opposed to the Communistic form of government as sponsored by Moscow, Thomas said he could not tolerate the "violence and 'bureaucratic' phases of Communism, adding:

"I do not believe in control from the top down. Communism grants no civil liberty and its interests are the interests of one nation, Russia, against the world."

MOTION DENIAL STIRS PRESS LABOR TRIAL

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 23—Arbitrarily stopping Edward G. Woods, chief of counsel for the Seattle Post-Intelligencer, in the middle of his argument, Trial Examiner Edwin S. Smith of the National Labor Relations board in an amazing ruling yesterday denied motions for dismissal of the case against the Post-Intelligencer before Woods could present them.

The astounded attorney engaged in a fiery exchange with the trial examiner and then demanded that the record show he had not been allowed to present his motions.

As another outstanding event in a day packed with sensational developments, Dave Beck, Seattle labor dictator, was subpoenaed before the labor board hearing to tell what he knows about the mob violence which forced the Post-Intelligencer to suspend publication. The hearing is in connection with the dismissal by the Post-Intelligencer of two editorial employes which also was the pretext for a strike by two dozen editorial department workers and the consequent shutdown of the newspaper by violence.

Crossley Poll Shows

Key Districts Rule Doubtful States

By ARCHIBALD M. CROSSLEY
President of Crossley, Inc.

Copyright, 1936, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

New York, Sept. 23—The first "breakdown" figures, showing not only states but parts of states in their advance choice of presidential candidates, are made available today in the Crossley Poll.

—VOTE AMERICAN—

These "breakdown" figures have special significance, both because they reveal the situation in many doubtful states which hold the key to the results of the coming election, but also because of the "key-county" or "key-district" situation within many of the more important doubtful states.

This can best be explained by considering New Jersey, where the latest figures show a nearly balanced —50 per cent of the major-party vote for Landon, 50 per cent for Roosevelt.

It is not generally realized that New Jersey, which in 1932 went for Roosevelt by 20,646 majority over Hoover, was carried into the Roosevelt column by a single county—Hudson—which alone gave Roosevelt a majority of 117,741 votes.

The state's total major-party vote was 1,562,314, and the Hudson County major-party vote was 231,-613. So a county having less than 15 per cent of the vote of the state was able to overcome by a Roosevelt majority of nearly three to one, the Hoover preference of the rest of the state.

Hudson is the county which contains Jersey City and its contiguous towns. It should be mentioned that three northern counties, Passaic, Warren and Middlesex, also were carried by Roosevelt, though by small majorities. Hoover carried 17 counties but lost the state with the 18 electoral votes.

Further light upon the situation is shed by statistics showing that Hudson County polled a heavier vote in proportion to its population than the general rate of the state. But in political parlance it simply means that the Roosevelt vote in Jersey City and its neighboring communities was "brought out."

Crossley Poll figures to date show the same general situation: that the overwhelming preponderance of New Jersey is favoring Landon, while the Hudson County majority is heavily in favor of Roosevelt.

So the question as to that even-balanced state is decided on election day boils down to the ability of the Hudson County political leadership to get its vote to the polls as against the turnout of normal voters in the remainder of the state.

I have explained this situation at some length because it is typical of much of the American political scene and inherent in our Constitutional plan of voting for President by states.

The situation in which a single county, or a small number of counties, swings an entire bloc of electoral votes is repeated in many of the doubtful states in this election, though in less emphatic form than that of New Jersey.

The Crossley poll is published daily in the Boston Evening American and Sunday in the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

TOUR PLANNED BY PRESIDENT

Hyde Park, N. Y., Sept. 23 (INS)—Campaign plans occupied the attention of President Roosevelt today.

Here in the seclusion of his Hudson River home the President was working out a schedule for a frankly political trans-continental tour.

Tonight Mr. Roosevelt and his Republican opponent, Governor Alfred M. Landon of Kansas, will have an opportunity to present some of their conflicting views to the nation.

Both candidates were to speak for a "forum," arranged by a New York newspaper.

Tomorrow, Democratic National Chairman James A. Farley and nearly a dozen other party leaders will converge at Hyde Park

EDUCATOR FLAYS AAA

Colgate Head Warns of Parasitism

Hamilton, N. Y., Sept.) (INS)—Vigorously denouncing the outlawed Agricultural Adjustment Administration as but one example to be deplored, George Barton Cutten, president of Colgate University, delivering his convocation address to the student body, today declared that "for the first time in the history of any country the attempt is being made in our land to make parasites of a whole nation."

"Uncounted thousands were paid uncounted millions derived from the sweat of men for not raising cotton, for not raising wheat, for not raising hogs, and that at a time when women and children were in want," Cutten said.

"If that is the road to prosperity it is no straight one. Rewarding people for inactivity, putting a premium on not doing something, and that something to add to the wealth of the nation, is a training for parasitism which could only be conceived by persons endowed with a genius begotten and trained in bedlam. Nor are such people to be turned aside by mere trifles such as a national constitution or reasoned judgment, for what cannot be done through Agricultural Adjustment Administration must be continued by soil conservation.

"With such an example in high places, of parasitic rewards so widely scattered, and so thoughtlessly planned, is it any wonder that share the wealth and $200 a month and similar parasitic bait should be thrown recklessly before the susceptible voters, or that the veterans should make a $2,000,000,000 raid on the Treasury?"

JOE ROBINSON OPENS FIRE

New York, Sept. 23 (INS)—Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, one of the Democratic party's "big guns," today opened fire on Governor Landon and Colonel Knox in an inaerview which he granted in Democratic national headquarters with the national chairman, James A. Farley, sitting at his side.

Robinson assailed Landon for "advocating in one breath the balancing of the budget and in the next breath recognizing the necessity for great expenditures for cash benefits for the farmers and for unemployment relief."

He declared that in his judgment, Colonel Knox's speeches "disclose his failure to recognize the general intelligence of the public."

1000 REFUSED AGE AID

Many Can't Find Birth Facts

One thousand Boston men and women, aged 65 or over, are unable to qualify as recipients of compensation under the Old Age Assistance Act, John C. L. Dowling, director of the municipal welfare department, announced today.

Many of these residents are unable to find records of their births. Others are having difficulty in proving themselves to be legal residents of the Commonwealth. Some cannot prove that they are citizens of the United States.

All will have to continue as recipients of welfare relief unless they can meet with the requirements of the law which provided for payment of this compensation, Dowling said.

A total of 1100 persons are now receiving old age assistance payments through the Boston welfare department. Since September 1 when the age limit was reduced from 70 to 65 weekly savings of $5000 have been effected in welfare expenditures because Boston pays only one-sixth of the cost of old age assistance.

BLENDED AND BOTTLED BY
JOS. S. FINCH & CO. INC. SCHENLEY, PA.

I'll just bet Grandad Wilken's eyes would pop if he was here to see how everybody's so keen for The Wilken Family's own personal recipe! And I just know we're trying like anything to follow out every one of his teachings so as he'd have a right to be real proud of us.

When you come right down to it, William and Tom and me—and I guess all you folks that are so tickled over the mildness and tastiness of The Wilken Family Whiskey—I guess we all have got to hand every bit of the credit to Grandad and Dad. It was Grandad that taught Dad, and Dad that taught us. So there's no getting around it—all we're doing now is watching out to make sure every batch we turn out is made just like Dad said to.

Well there's no fear of us ever slacking up on our care. You'd find the lot of us on the job every day from 6 a.m. till quitting time. It was mighty seldom we got off to fish this summer. Well, the creek's all dried up now anyhow!

Fashion Luncheon Attracts Smart Set Leaders

By BETTY ALDEN

EVEN DEBUTANTES must submit to one of the primary laws of physics which states that a person cannot be in two places at once . . . So yesterday afternoon many of them had to send their mothers to the fashion luncheon at the Copley-Plaza while they attended a coming out party of one of their sister debs, at the Ritz-Carlton . . .

Of course the mothers needed little urging, for fashions seem to be uppermost in the feminine mind at this season . . . and though most of the costumes shown by the mannequins were designed for the debutante, there were plenty of modish outfits suitable for mother's autumn wardrobe . . .

BLANCHE O'RIORDAN

A runway was erected between the main dining room and the Sheraton room at the Copley-Plaza and the models paraded across it before gliding about past the tables crowded with fashionable luncheers . . . Several Bostonians who have just returned from Paris are evidently not satiated with fashion openings, for they were on hand to see what a smart Boston shop has to offer in the way of fall styles . . .

Mrs. Howard Turner was one of these . . . and resembled a mannequin herself in a smart dark gray ensemble with one of the popular little capes edged with Persian lamb . . .

Blanche O'Riordan, one of last season's debs, has also just returned from viewing the fashion openings in some of the famous salons in Paris . . . Even after seeing how the graceful French mannequins display clothes, she was still glad to pick up a few pointers on the technique of modelling for she is acting as a model in today's Fashion Congress luncheon . . .

She and Sally Scudder dropped in for luncheon before they went to be fitted in the repertoire of town and country tweeds they are both modelling today . . .

Mrs. John Bryant Paine of Weston and her debutante daughter admired the clothes . . . especially the glamorous gold satin gown modelled by Caroline Oveson . . . Even the most sophisticated debutante would feel glamorous with its shimmering satin falling around her ankles at the alluring shirred bodice, but its puffed sleeves and graceful skirt give it youthful enough lines to satisfy any fastidious mother . . .

Mrs. James M. Torbert, mother of post-deb, Anne and Margaret; Mrs. Allan Bruce of Marblehead, Mrs. Arthur Blake, whose daughter, Leslie, modelled a trick little black moire evening gown which has the approval of several of the best-dressed debs . . . the dress has a reversible shoulder cape of black moire faced with white . . .

Mrs. John W. Myers and some of her fellow committee members were lunching and plotting schemes for the success of the Boston Morning Musicales, which open another season on November 19 . . . and still others present were Mrs. Reeve Chipman, Mrs. Gordon Hutchins and Mrs. James Thayer . . .

* * *

Leaves From Our Social Notebook

ELEANOR POOLE, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Armstrong Poole of Milton, embarked upon the first lap of her collegiate career yesterday when she left for Chicago . . . she enters the freshman class at University of Chicago this week, which means her debut dance will probably take place in the atmosphere of belly and mistletoe instead of the usual chrysanthemums and roses of the earlier deb parties . . .

The James Roosevelts are back in our midst, residing in an apartment in Pelham Hall, near Coolidge Corner . . .

Mrs. Louis Frothingham moves back to town from Manchester next week in time for the opening of private schools . . . During Maurice Ames' (Mrs. Frederick L. Ames) absence on a concert tour of Europe, Mrs. Frothingham is chaperoning her little daughter, Nelly Blair Ames, whose father, the late Frederick Ames, was Mrs. Frothingham's nephew . . .

Evidently the stags haven't got their white ties and top hats out of moth balls yet, for we only saw one full dress suit among the younger gallants at Essex County Club Saturday evening . . .

Marjorie Saltonstall was well escorted at luncheon in a Boylston street tearoom yesterday afternoon . . . with two attentive boy friends urging her to relate some of her interesting anecdotes about the trip she and Jessie Fay took to Europe this summer . . .

Fashionable St. Thomas' Church in New York, erstwhile scene of so many "big society weddings," recaptured some of its lost glory yesterday when a very elaborate ceremony took place within its lofty interior . . . the fad for elopements and small informal weddings rather cut into St. Thomas' prestige as a setting for fashionable marriages . . . but Katherine Moss and Charles Henry Mellon staged a society wedding, in every sense of the word . . . William H. Moore of Pride's Crossing and Covent, N. J., was one of the ushers . . . and there were many "ohs" and "ahs" as the bridesmaids glided down the aisle in period red velvet dresses with hats to match and carrying Kolinsky muffs instead of flowers . . .

Nowadays it is an old story for society girls to sing in night clubs and cocktail rooms, but it's still a little unusual for them to sing on a radio amateur hour . . . The other evening the crowd that happened to be at the New York studio for the broadcast of Major Bowes' amateur program was surprised to find Mrs. Alexander Forbes among the performers . . . Mrs. Forbes, daughter-in-law of the F. Murray Forbes of Wellesley, has been known to do a bit of modelling now and then and has even posed for commercial advertisements, but few realized that she possesses a very sweet singing voice and could hold her own among any of the society girls who have joined the throng of night club singers in New York . . . She is the daughter of the late Warren Delano Robbins, United States Minister to Canada, and is considered to be quite a beauty by her friends, who know her best as "Sunny" Forbes . . . She and Alex were married two and a half years ago at a fashionable wedding in Ottawa while her late father was in the diplomatic service . . .

Debutante Parties Keep Them Busy

AGNES PERRY JOSEPHINE PERRY PRISCILLA HALL

THIS HAPPY TRIO was snapped at a recent coming-out party. Miss Agnes Perry, one of the season's debs, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Haines Perry of Meadowwood, Dover; Miss Josephine Perry, her cousin, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Perry of Fountain Farm, Dover. Their companion is Miss Priscilla Hall, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Francis Cooley Hall of Chestnut Hill and Nahant.

Miss Nichols In Debut

The long list of debutantes who will make their official bows to society at the famous Bachelors' Cotillon in Baltimore on December 7, includes the name of at least two girls well known to Boston society.

Miss Emily Alan Nichols, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Gilman Nichols of Cambridge and Rockport, who will be honored at a party at the Cambridge Elizabethan Club on November 14, will also be presented at the Cotillon. Mrs. Nichols is the former Miss Emily Alan Smith of Baltimore.

Miss Hope Hartley Distler, who with her mother, Mrs. John Cyrus Distler, spent the summer at Annisquam, will also make her debut at the Cotillon. Mrs. Henry A. Wise Wood, who is well known for her lectures and color photography, is the debutante's grandmother.

Mary Wright To Make Bow

A number of this year's debutantes are having their debut parties early in the season before they hurry off to Europe to study, but necessity has compelled Miss Mary Wright to do just the opposite.

Her father's position as American Minister to Czechoslovakia has kept the family in Europe during the past summer but they plan to return to this country on October 14, when Miss Wright will join the proverbial whirl of debutante activities.

Two days after her arrival, her niece, Mrs. Louis Bacon, will invite a number of her sister debs to meet her at an informal reception. The following Sunday, October 18, Mrs. N. Stuart Campbell of Brookline will entertain in her honor, and two days later she will again be honored at a party given by Miss Nancy Cassels and her mother Mrs. J. Donald Cassels of Manchester and Boston.

Miss Wright and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Butler Wright, will live at 101 Chestnut street during the early part of the winter season.

Bellarmine Academy Elects Mrs. Downing

By DOROTHY W. CRANNELL

ANNOUNCEMENT has just been made of the election of Mrs. John Godwin Downing of Chestnut Hill as president of the Bellarmine Academy of Boston.

The Bellarmine Academy, now entering its third year of existence, was established with a view to the advancement of educational and missionary work.

Mrs. John G. Downing

It was named in honor of Robert Francis Romulus Hellia Bellarmine, 16th Century Jesuit and statesman of the Catholic faith. His strong and successful opposition against a storm of heresies which swept over the whole of Europe at that time gained for him such recognition that he was received into the College of Cardinals by Pope Clement VII.

The present Pope not unmindful of the lasting results of his great work and the brilliancy of his scholastic mind only recently honored his memory when he canonized him a saint. An outstanding fact in the life Robert Cardinal Bellarmine is that his worst enemies were forced to admit his loyalty to the Vicar of Christ.

The first meeting of the Bellarmine Academy will be held Wednesday, October 14, at the Commonwealth Country Club. Coffee hour will commence at 10 o'clock, followed by a meeting of the round table in which Mrs. Edward A. McLaughlin will review a book of current interest. A brief lecture on "The Glory That Was Spain" will be given by Rev. Father Raymond J. Mellana, S. J.

Father George M. Murphy, S. J., treasurer of the Jesuit Missions of New England, is the spiritual director.

The funds of the Bellarmine Academy go to support the Jesuit Missions established throughout the West Indies. This year promises to be not only very interesting but very successful.

Officers of the club for the coming season, exclusive of Mrs. Downing, are: Mrs. Joseph H. Shortell, honorary president and one of the founders of the club; Mrs. William St. George, vice-president; Miss Alice E. Barry, secretary; Mrs. Edward R. Walsh, Jr., treasurer, and Mrs. Edward A. McLaughlin, moderator of the round table.

Luncheon For Deb

The rusty brown of the rocky shore and the blue of the sea displayed the usual floral colors as a background for the reception of guests at Miss Betsy Shrigley's debutante luncheon this afternoon.

Miss Shrigley and her mother received on the porch of Miramar, their home on the ocean side of Marblehead Neck, because of the cool breezes the luncheon was set on small tables inside the house. Miss Shrigley wore an autumn dress of maroon wool, trimmed with gray Persian lamb, and a corsage of white orchids with deep red centers. Mrs. Shrigley was in black crepe with a corsage of purple orchids.

Miss Shrigley, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Rolfe Shrigley, is a graduate of the Lee school in Boston and also studied in Bermuda and Geneva, Switzerland. A dinner will be given in her honor at the Chilton Club later in the season.

Susanna Song Stirs N. E. Poets to Action

Easy To Enter Contest

Many Cash Awards for Lyrics to Simple Verse

The Landon Song Contest editor eats, sleeps, and sings "Oh, Susanna," but each time with different words, so he doesn't mind.

"Oh, Susanna," is the tune on the lips of this Norwood girl, Miss Ruth Smith, as she rounds out a chorus of the patriotic song. Think up words to fit the tune of this song, and you may win a cash prize in the Landon song contest.

The paradise are pouring in Verse after verse, each one more clever than the last, singing the praises of Alf Landon, Republican presidential nominee.

The viewpoint of the day ranged from old to high in tone for the national scene of 1936.

The winner for the day is Mrs. Abbie A. Edmonds, 87 Leonard avenue, West Providence, R. I.

The song contest editor received a thank you note in rhyme and it read:

"Thank you, Mr. Newspaper—
(and Miss Susanna, too!)
I got my check this morning and 'twas mighty nice of you.

I'm gonna try my hand again,
'cause who the heck can tell—
You might VOTE ME the thousand bucks (gee, Alf, would that be swell!).

MARJORIE JAMIESON.

Sounds funny,
Maybe poetic and unpremeditated.
But you might call it a masterpiece.
It's good to be "in the money."
Sure, we're all for Alf Landon,
Sure we're all for the song,
Sure we're all for the campaign some fun to be had,
And daylight there will brighter shine when Landon has his way.

So I'll be a-marching on, and shouting loud and true,
"We want you, Alfred Landon, you're the man to pull us through."

Oh! Alf Landon, the people are for you,
To save the Constitution and progress the Union too.

We're turning hoss-trurry, and we're standing upside down,
F. R. has lost his hat and his head, and thinks he wears a crown.

We've gone down deep in debt so red, red will be a joy,
To give us back the colors that were "Red and White and Blue."

We want our independence, and [illegible] is TAXING it away,
The liberties our fathers loved, we give dimmer day by day.

We do want entertainment and relief from fools to crowd,
But we would like to keep some money inside our pocketbook.

We love dear old America, and we want to work and play,
And daylight there will brighter shine when Landon has his way.

So I'll be a-marching on, and shouting loud and true,
"We want you, Alfred Landon, you're the man to pull us through."

Amateur Talent Quest Ends Today

Have you entered the Boston Evening American-Fred Allen Talent Quest?

Have you been auditioned, at Station WMEX, by Uncle Jim Harris' talent quest auditioner, Paul Fox? If not, this is your last chance today. It is simple and free. All you have to do is clip the coupon in this newspaper and present it at Station WMEX and you will be heard. Don't be afraid or shy. Mr. Fox is both sympathetic and understanding and will give you a real opportunity to present yourself and your wares.

To the female of the species, let it be reminded again that here is an opportunity that comes only once in a lifetime. A chance to appear on the same program, on the same stage, at the Metropolitan Theater, with that romantic star of the screen and stage, John Boles.

To date, Mr. Fox has made several selections, out of the number of applicants he has already auditioned, but there is still room for more, and final selections must be made today. So, hurry with your coupon and follow the crowd to fame and fortune.

Fred Allen's Town Hall Tonite starts Friday, Sept. 25, in conjunction with John Boles, in person, and on the screen you will see Kay Francis and George Brent in the Cosmopolitan production, "Give Me Your Heart."

Second Good Will Court Session Airing

By N. F. T.

If the Sunday night hour (WEEI) of "Good Will Court" doings does not afford adequate carcupping for the followers who relish it, then the added Wednesday night hour is now to be had (WMEX) at 10 o'clock. It's more or less of an overflow offering.

Here, too, is another indication that the bigger stations are in for some real competition this fall, and peppy little WMEX, locally, with its New York chain connection, called the Inter-City network, promises some top flight features. Then there's rugged old WHDH and determined WOOD and, youngest of them all, well-established WORL, which also insists it will be heard from apiently, and that much of the time we'll like it.

N. F. T.

Happenings during the "Good Will Court" programs, both on Wednesday and Sunday evening, will be much the same as always, although presented more briefly and to the point.

This altered technique is in order that more cases can be heard, thereby staging a bigger "make" show for the air audience. No admission is permitted to the studios in New York, and none will be granted in the future, say the powers-that-be. Much of the material used and the general character of the "testimony" doesn't lend itself to being witnessed by onlookers, they claim.

What's more, it's reasonable to grant that they're absolutely correct, even if some of the newspaper boys knocking on Radio City doors in New York Sunday night last, were peeved no little. For my part, the show is crackerjack dial diversion of the likes that sort of a setting. As to loudspeaker patronage, I think more people look to that type of offering than to any other, which is why I further feel that "Good Will Court" will attract a whale of a crowd from coast to coast, both on Sunday night and on Wednesday night. Making it just super-colossal from the sponsor standpoint.

* * *

The case of "Ma" Barker, one of the cleverest minds to run afoul of law enforcement officers in modern times, will be continued in a second dramatic installment by Phillips Lord's "Gang Busters," broadcast (WNAC) this evening from 10 to 10:30 o'clock.

The episode will deal with the discovery of "Ma" and her sons in a Florida hide-out, and the fierce gun battle which ended her criminal career.

* * *

Those foolish things, "Stoopnagle and Budd" will present another one of their famous parodies of well-known radio programs when they offer a drama entitled "Buck Rogers in the 25th Inning" as the highlight of their next-to-last "Town Hall Tonight" broadcast (WEEI) at 9 p. m.

JUNIOR BIRDMEN OF AMERICA

DEVOTED TO THE INTEREST OF THE YOUTH OF THE AMERIICAS IN AVIATION

TODAY'S PILOTS OF MODELS —TOMORROW'S MODEL PILOTS!

Two prominent Junior Birdmen squadrons are undergoing changes in preparation for fall and winter activities. They are the Leaping Lenas of Everett and the Comets of Roslindale.

Some of the older boys of the Leaping Lenas have withdrawn from that unit to organize a separate squadron with Jack Bronski as commander and his father, Nathan Bronski, as sponsor. The new captain of the unit is Bill Penney. No secretary was chosen.

Jack Bronski

This squadron will call itself the W N A C unit, the initials standing for the Woodlawn Model Airplane Club, and is now meeting regularly in the Bronski garage at 220 Springvale avenue, Everett.

Members include John E. Jacobs, former commander of the Leaping Lenas, William Days, Carl Bessler, Eugene Blevins and George "Curt" Raymond.

The younger members of the Leaping Lenas will continue to meet in the basement of Chester Card's home, 42 Jefferson avenue, and be sponsored by Randolph C. Willis.

The Comets are planning to expand and are opening their membership rolls to all boys in Roslindale who are really interested in building model planes and joining in competitions.

This squadron is sponsored by Gaylon Townsend, 1038 Canterbury street, Roslindale, with whom applicants should communicate.

The Comets include Norman Wiedeman as commander, Ray Townsend as captain, Fred Bellows, Robert Sebring and "Art" McLean. The latter specializes in scale and outdoor models and is attached to the aviation division of the Massachusetts National Guard.

The biggest problem of the unit is to find a suitable hall in which to test and compete with indoor models. The sponsor hopes to obtain permission to use the gym of newly known as the Washington the Roslindale High School, for-Irving School.

"GIVE ME YOUR HEART"

A NEW SERIAL

By Lewis Allen Browne

A COSMOPOLITAN PRODUCTION TO BE RELEASED SOON BY WARNER BROTHERS

CHAPTER 20

The chauffeur had to apply the brakes to avoid a collision. Linda screamed and clutched Jim.

"He must have it a mile, Bill—why the nerves?"—Jim asked.

"Well, I don't want a smash-up."

"Silly dear, aren't you rather close to it now, lying on your nerves like this?"

Linda delivered indignant comment and resumed a seriousness and felt a sense of humor.

"Darling, won't let me get started again," she begged.

"You need sleep—weeks and months of sleep, my dear."

"Sleep—I wish I could sleep well."

"I know. I often hear you in the night."

"Hear me?" There was a note of fright in Linda's voice. "Am I talking?"

"Quite frequently."

Linda held her breath a moment, then forced herself to ask, "What do I say, Jim?"

"Don't know—it's just mumbling, but a most unhappy sort of mumbling."

Linda felt a surge of relief. Their car stopped at the apartment. It was a maid not Johnson, the second butler, who let them in.

Linda drew Jim into one and asked the maid to bring tea. A glance at Jim's watch showed that it was little, however, that escaped him. "Where is Johnson tonight?" he asked.

"He had to go to the hospital tonight, sir. He said he was sure you wouldn't mind."

"Naturally not, if he is ill," Linda observed.

"Oh, he isn't ill," the maid smiled broadly, "it is his wife, she is having a baby tonight."

"Really?" Jim smiled broadly. "Well, that's something. Good for Johnson—and good for Mrs. Johnson."

Linda turned toward her bedroom door, to avoid looking at Jim.

"Well," Jim said, when he entered, "we will have to get new buttons for Johnson's livery, eh, Bill?"

"Buttons, Jim?"

"Naturally. Why not? He will be so proud that he will swell out his chest and pop off all his buttons."

Linda said nothing to a smile. Then, rather faintly, "I hope his wife is all right."

Regrets!

"Why not? It's quite the natural thing, isn't it, Bill?"

Linda turned to hear them and there was a look in her eyes that hurt her husband.

"You wish that you hadn't married me, don't you, Jim?"

"My dear."

"You do."

The maid rapped at the door and brought in the hot milk. Linda sipped it and studied Jim over the top of the glass as he stepped into the dressing room. He turned in the doorway.

"Bill," he said, gently. Linda looked up and tried to smile at him. "Do you think I am the kind of a man who would chase a girl the way I chased you—and keep after her to marry me the way I did—and then turn around and wish I hadn't done it?"

"I wouldn't blame you," Linda murmured.

"I loved you, I wanted you, and I made up my mind to get you."

"Well, Jim, you did."

"No."

Linda shook a smile on the milk, set the glass down and stood at him.

"What?"

Jim came back and sat beside her on the dressing stool bench.

"I love you more than ever, and we are married, but I haven't got you."

"Darling—don't say that!" Linda cried. It hurt her because she knew that Jim was right.

"You know it, Bill. You may be sitting here, but you go off by yourself in your thoughts. And I don't never asked what they were, or wanted to know. But you won't let me help you, back—and when I try, there are moments when I feel that you almost hate me."

"No, Jim—oh, no—never."

Linda began to sob.

"Gosh, darling, was I that eloquent? Forget it and go to sleep." He kissed her and went into the dressing room. When he came out he was smiling.

"Remind me to send flowers over to Johnson's wife in the morning, Bill," he said. "We will have to make them a little present, too."

"Yes, Jim."

"I hope it is a nice healthy baby. Oh well, we can't all have everything. Some men have all. Oh, luck."

"Meaning Johnson, because his wife is having a baby?"

"What do YOU think, Bill?"

"What do I think, Jim? Why, What am I to think, other than you just said that Johnson had all the luck because his wife has presented him with an heir?"

Jim lifted Linda's face and stared at her.

"What," he repeated slowly, "do you think?"

"I think," Linda's voice was piteous, "that I am going to cry."

"A woman's answer, Bill—you couldn't be so banal."

"Not that, Jim—I—I—cannot think of it. And that makes you unhappy?"

"Not often. You have been wonderful, Bill, and I doubt if I could survive if you walked out on me."

"Don't say that, darling," Linda begged.

"When you walk out, take me along with you."

"Oh Jim, you are sweet. Try to put up with me. Remember how much I love you. I'll get Florence to give me a tonic, I'll get more sleep—I'm just run down. I hope this hot milk makes me sleep."

"You need more than hot milk, Bill. You need a sea voyage?"

"I don't want to leave you." She put an arm about him.

"Had no idea of it. It looks as though I have to make a trip."

"Really? The Riviera, Sorrento?"

"England. It is a business trip, but I shall have a lot of time. We can get a car and you could show me about a bit, if it wouldn't bore you."

Brilliant Tweed Captures Award

IT BLOOMS with the brilliance of an autumn flower—this tweed suit in a perfectly devastating color combination of a practically unnamable fuchsia-wine with hints of the new mist blue. Fashion Congress selection. It has a little of the gossamer blue on ripe Concord grapes, a little of grey-blue haze on Massachusetts hills in October. It is pretty plain that we consider it a lovely color?

Beneath the neatly buttoned-up jacket is a mist-blue woolen blouse with a trace of openwork, for though this is a tweed it is far from workaday. It's tweed in the role of impressiveness that is its due this fall. Following up the postillion line of snug double-breasted buttoning, the felt hat rises in a line as high and gay as a coaching bugle note. Miss Dorothy Watters models.

For shopping information on suit or hat, phone Annice Brink, Fashion Editor, LIBerty 4000, or write her at the Boston Evening American.

"Your Figure, Madame!"

By IDA JEAN KAIN

(Copyright, 1936, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

WHEN THE dressmakers get reckless with frills and fuss, it is time to exercise restraint with your figure. This fall the couturiers have gone a little mad and have brought out all their tricks—bustles, peplums and slit skirts—to call attention to your figure.

As far as you are concerned, the choice is a clear one: bustles or hips; tail coats or hips; peplums or hips. You can't have any of these with cumbersome hips. Imagine using a padded peplum on a figure already padded with adipose tissue!

Circular skirts are made to swing from the hips with just a subtle suggestion of an outward sweep—another reason for slimness. However, you can take your hips down easily by rolling regularly, and if this measurement is your big worry, write for the new leaflet, "Rolling Exercises," and start in.

Kick Over a Chair!

In the meantime, while you are waiting for the postman, try this exercise for the posterior:

Lie on the floor, raise the legs and grasp each leg under the knee, bringing the body to a half-sitting position. Hold this position and swing the hips from side to side as far as you can without losing your balance. Then, to smooth out that shelflike effect, rock back and forth so that shoulders and legs rest alternately on the floor.

If you prefer the leg-swinging type of exercise, swing away, but remember that the gluteal muscles of the buttocks are affected only by a position that elevates the leg to an angle of 45 degrees.

Try kicking over a chair every morning, an exercise less simple than it sounds. Get a fairly short chair such as a bridge chair, or use a kitchen stool. Stand a little way back from it and swing first one foot and then the other back and forth over the chair. Ten times will be plenty, thank you, for one morning's workout.

Take Miss Kain's advice and benefit by her long and successful experience. A large self-addressed, stamped envelope sent to her in care of this paper will bring you both the "Rolling Exercises" and the "Hips, Hips—Away!" leaflet.

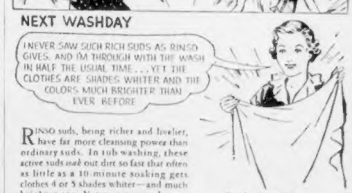
WHAT! YOU MEAN THAT BY SIMPLY CHANGING THE SOAP I'M USING I CAN GET CLOTHES 4 OR 5 SHADES WHITER FROM MY WASHER?
YES! AND COLORS WILL COME MUCH BRIGHTER, TOO!

YOU'LL NEVER HAVE ANY FLAT, LIFELESS SUDS LIKE THESE WITH RINSO NO MORE DULL CLOTHES EITHER—
AND YOU REALLY THINK RINSO WILL GIVE ME RICHER, SAFER, LONGER-LASTING SUDS?

I KNOW SO—JUST AS SURE AS I'M STANDING HERE! RINSO IS USED IN MORE WASHERS THAN ANY OTHER SOAP
THAT SETTLES IT! RINSO MUST BE GOOD. I'LL TRY IT NEXT WASHDAY

NEXT WASHDAY



I NEVER SAW SUCH RICH SUDS AS RINSO GIVES. AND I'M THROUGH WITH THE WASH IN HALF THE USUAL TIME . . . YET THE CLOTHES ARE SHADES WHITER AND THE COLORS MUCH BRIGHTER THAN EVER BEFORE

RINSO suds, being richer and livelier, have far more cleansing power than ordinary suds. In tub washing, these active suds seek out dirt so fast that often as little as a 10 minute soaking gets clothes 4 or 5 shades whiter—and much brighter, too. Yet you can soak your clothes in Rinso suds overnight if you wish and be certain that everything is safe.

And because Rinso soaks out dirt without hard scrubbing or boiling, clothes last 2 or 3 times longer. Rinso is recommended by the makers of 35 famous washers. Grand for dishes and all cleaning. America's biggest-selling package soap.

How to Interpret Dreams

A DREAM of falling off a cliff! Down, down, down, you go. Miles and miles. If you ever do hit the ground, you wake up!

That's one of mankind's oldest dreams. It may come from fear of danger, disgrace or failure.

In Barbara's case it's fear of trying a new job in a strange city. The new venture seems like a leap from solid ground right out into the unknown. She secretly wants to fail and so avoid responsibility. Therefore she dreams of a long drop.

The same dream may mean different things to different people. To another girl the "falling" dream might stand for a dubious love affair.

A dream of someone else falling into an abyss reveals a secret envy, a wish to see that person leveled or banned from your circle.

Take warning from a "falling" dream. Face new problems with the will to win, but the secret will to fail. Cease to wish, even secretly, for the failure or disgrace of another. These are all destructive thoughts that make you less effective, a less vital, worth while, likable human being.

Profit by your dreams with the aid of Alice Leone Jones' booklet, INTERPRETING YOUR DREAMS. Know dream symbols, what to do, carefully weigh and discard as unimportant. Sound psychological information.

Send 15 cents for our booklet, INTERPRETING YOUR DREAMS, to Boston Evening American, Home Institute, 109 West 39th Street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address and name of booklet.

FROM MARTHA LEE'S WEDNESDAY'S BROADCAST OVER STATION WMEX.

HAVE YOU SEEN the little food "protectors"—silk oilcloth coverings for preserving jars and bowls of food placed in the refrigerator?

Well, you haven't seen anything, for they've grown in size and purpose and they now cover salad bowls and platters.

There are watermelon cubes, sweet burr gherkins, sweet gherkins and sweet mixed—surely a variety for every occasion!

IF THE WAR in Spain means only headlines to you, listen to this! Ninety-nine per cent of the green olives from that revolting torn country and buyers have't been able to purchase olives for five weeks. They will probably become increasingly scarce and high priced. So these stuffed olives selling for 28c, or 2 jars for 75c, will shortly be 45c to 48c. Buy now and be prepared for what may come.

APRICOTS lend their delicately different flavor and sunny golden color to many tempting dishes. Made with the first crop of the new season, these are doubly delicious. A nearby food shop has these first arrivals from California selling at 20c a pound. These are packed in the ordinary way—that is, a sulphur process of drying. If for any reason sulphur is out of the diet, the unsulphured apricots may be had for 35c a pound—this year's crop, too.

FOR INFORMATION on any of the above items write to Martha Lee, 3 Winthrop square, Boston, enclosing a loose 3c stamp, or call her at LIBerty 4000.

And not only food, but equipment as well now sports these handy little gadgets for keeping out dust and grime, particularly equipment like the toaster and electric food mixer which we like to have standing on the kitchen cabinet so they are always ready to use. These protectors vary in price with the size. A set of three for use on bowls sells for 59c.

MAYBE YOU'VE HEARD of the pea and lima bean shelter—well, seeing is believing and it's being demonstated this week. If you aren't familiar with it, don't fail to see it. In action, it resembles a Hippatian clothes wringer, but the rollers are so spaced that the peas and beans come out in perfect shape free of their pods. Good news—it's now selling for 90c, formerly $1.59.

THERE IS an extraordinary value on pickles in the food shop of a nearby department store. So, if you feel like a slanker when you see your neighbors busy preserving and pickling these days, or even if you're immersed in this time-consuming job yourself, dash right in and stock up on all these varieties of pickles that come in full quart-size jars, 32 ounces, and 2 jars for 95c. They've never been less than 49c each.

Caring for Invalids

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D

A PATIENT bed-ridden from a long, continued illness or physical disability may become afflicted with what we know as "bed sores."

This is an annoying condition and if neglected may lead to serious infection.

Bed sores can be prevented if the skin of the would-be sufferer is cared for and the necessary precautions are taken to avoid irritation. Bear in mind that because of his debilitated condition the invalid has poor resistance, the tone of the skin is [illegible] below par. On this account friction and pressure of the [illegible] knees, back and buttocks may set up an irritation [illegible] to bed sores.

Every effort should be made to avoid [illegible] The sheets of the bed should be soft and free [illegible] wrinkles and an excess of [illegible] These precautions are especially necessary for those who have sensitive skins. Additional protection is afforded by the use of soft pads and cushions to protect those parts of the body that are constantly in contact with the bed linen. A frequent change of position, with change of the pillow is helpful.

The patient should be bathed as frequently as possible with warm water and a [illegible] soap. If professional assistance [illegible] this an alcohol rub may be given. The parts should be dried by patting and not rubbing.

'COLONIES' MAY QUIT SPAIN IN CRISIS

Geneva Sept 23 (INS)—Delegates of a dozen Latin-American countries hinted today their governments were considering following the example of Uruguay and breaking off diplomatic relations with Spain.

The one-time colonies of Spain are swinging towards Uruguay's contention that the present Madrid government is no longer able to protect lives and property of foreigners, as shown by the reported murder of three sisters of the Uruguayan Legation in Madrid.

Thus the Spanish civil war problem, which Geneva had hoped to sort-pedal came to the fore again with a curious line-up between the Spanish and Ethiopian questions. In disregard of Latin-American information that the question of Spain's status was itself in doubt the Spanish delegate to the League assembly S. Offorio y Gallardo, was elected vice president of the assembly's political commission, which will play an important part in judging the fate of Ethiopia's delegation.

Following Britain's latest snub to the League with hawaii of her representatives on the sub-committee considering the use of the radio to foster peace, the showdown on the Spanish delegation is expected to develop.

Seville, Sept. 23—Anyone who says or thinks that the Reds have no courage is silly. Only thoughtless people on this side are saying that. General Franco himself thinks they have plenty, at least the Anarchists have, whom the general respects for that quality, though he intends to exterminate them if they won't give in.

BRIDE'S FATHER, LONGO NEAR FIGHT

FRIEND PREVENTS BATTLE

Meeting in a courthouse corridor, William C. Mitchell, father of Mrs. Edith Garrett Longo, 19-year-old West Medford bride, nearly tangled physically with his daughter's husband, Paul J. Longo, it was revealed today in the Longo divorce hearing.

DISPLEASED AT BRIDAL

"You were displeased with the marriage?" he was asked.

"Very much displeased," he replied. "I would be displeased at any girl 17 or 18 years old running away and getting married. I would have been displeased at her getting anyone."

Q—But don't think he was the reason for her did you?" A—No. I didn't think he was.

SAW OTHER BOYS

Q—You were opposed to the marriage from the start? A—I didn't like it at all.

Q—You did everything you could to keep them apart, didn't you? A—Up to a certain extent.

Mitchell, however, suggested that the main objection of the girl's parents was that she was too young.

Some time after she went to Longo in West Medford and met her for six months secretly.

"I wasn't interested in her," he said. "I didn't want to talk to her. I didn't like the whole thing."

He knew a bad reputation after he came home in Waterford.

Mitchell said Longo, the father, and he visited home from and in June 1935, as the result of a telephone call he received from his daughter. He found, she had run away again.

"I went out looking for Longo," he testified he told Mitchell. "I found him and I reached into his car and punched him."

The witness said he could not remember how much time he had punched or who else Longo had attacked prior to that.

Q—You left him in a pretty battered condition, didn't you?" A—I did.

Q—You wanted to beat him up yesterday" A—For the moment I did.

Q—Someone stopped you didn't they. A—Someone spoke to me.

Mitchell admitted that after his daughter had left Longo and returned home, Longo visited the Mitchell home and attempted to see the girl.

"I told him my daughter had come home and wasn't going back to him," said Mitchell, "and I said he couldn't see her. I asked her if she wanted to see him and she said no."

DOBIE Shakes Up B. C. SQUAD

Injuries to first string men, the return of other regulars from the disabled list, and several important promotions have resulted in a wholesale shakeup in the Boston College varsity eleven.

The men who were passed in yesterday's workouts, or put the way, Eric Gentell, Daniel Foley, Charles Davis, Gerard Donnelly, Edward Weiss, Edward Ryan and Lou Kroch.

Gentell, who has been playing the left halfback position in the first few games of the season, received a painful knee injury which forced him to the sidelines and after an examination by Dr. Bob Goch, team physician, it was announced that he would be back in two or three days.

Kroch, varsity center of the past two years, received a similar injury.

Ryan, 160-pound fullback, who jumped to a first backfield berth when Al Hoosh, powerful sophomore plunger and defensive ace was benched with an ankle injury received several bruises which will keep him out for a day or two.

Center Alex Piasecki, Dan Foley, leader and Ed Donnelly, guard, are the only members of last week's first team squad who will be ready for the game this week-end.

Piasecki suffered a shoulder injury which kept him out of the Holy Cross game last week and has been idle since then, but will today be returned for his first scrimmage since then, but will his shoulder well padded and after a long drill he reported being in the pink.

Lou Gehrig's Bat Gives Yanks Edge

STARRED IN FOUR SERIES

New York, Sept. 23 (US)—The dynamite-laden bat of Henry Louis Gehrig is the chief difference between the infields of the New York Yankees and the New York Giants, the teams slated to battle it out in baseball's world series beginning Wednesday, Sept. 30.

Defensively, the Giants and [illegible] matched, ting average for 19 World Series games is .263 but this year the tide may turn.

[illegible] damaging difference overlooked even [illegible]

Whitehead, however, gives the Giants a fielding edge at second. Lazzeri, at 32, can no longer cover too much ground. Whitehead, only 25, is one of the flashiest and most capable of the National League fielders.

Red Rolfe, the Yankee third-baseman, has undoubtedly outhit Travis Jackson, the Giant veteran this season and has fielded just as capably, if not more so at the "hot corner," but here, as in the case of Lazzeri and Whitehead, is another matter of an experienced, fading old-timer and a rising youngster.

Jackson, who has been with the Giants since 1922, has played thirteen world series games with them, may find this series, the occasion for stamping among baseball's series heroes.

It must always be remembered in these short series that past performances are merely figures for comparison and not a barometer for what a player can and will do in the all-important World Series game.

Lou a Veteran

Bartell Best

The lone Giant batting edge comes at shortstop, where the peppery Dick Bartell is batting about 10 points higher than Frankie Crosetti, but Crosetti has driven in 72 runs to 41 for Bartell. Bartell is a slightly better fielder than Crosetti, but both are noted for their spasmodic streaks of brilliance and error-making.

Following are comparisons of the batting and fielding records of the Giants and Yankee infields:

Punt and Passes

By Associated Press

New York—Jim Crowley of Fordham has worked out a new idea for teaching his players to block properly. He lined up the scrubs for scrimmage with five blocking dummies behind the line. The men running interference for the varsity had to take out the dummies and Jim saw to it that they went at it in the right way without having to allow for any moves by the defensive backs.

But [illegible] of the drill the boy [illegible] ing to work as regulars poured up 34 points against a husky squad of scrubs.

Syracuse, N. Y.—Ray Rockmack's battle hands are becoming a major gridiron problem at Syracuse. Last year the star halfback and passer broke a small bone in his hand and had to remain on the bench a while. He did it again yesterday straight-arming a would-be tackler.

Philadelphia—Although Temple scored 33 less points against St. Joseph Monday than it did last year, Glenn "Pop" Warner is not worried. "I predicted before the start of the season Temple would progress slowly, each game bring a better performance," he said.

New Orleans—The scouts who look over the Tulane team this year may rub their eyes a few times before they decide the Greenies haven't rounded up an all-star squad. Seven candidates for the 1936 team are brothers of former Tulane stars and each is trying for the same position which his older brother played.

Vancouver

Lions Seeking Jean Pusie

Vancouver, Sept. 23 (AP)—Guy Patrick, manager of the Vancouver Lions of the Northwestern Professional Hockey League, is angling for the services of Jean Pusie, fiery defenseman who played with the Boston Cubs last season.

With the disbanding of the Cubs, Pusie has been left free and Patrick stated last night he has sent an offer to the big Frenchman who has seen service on the defense lines of New York Rangers and Montreal Canadiens since he left Vancouver Lions in the spring of 1933.

Polo Match Off Until Saturday

New York, Sept. 23 (AP)—The second match of the international polo series for the cup of the Americas between the United States and Argentina, scheduled for this afternoon, was postponed today because of "unplayable conditions" at International Field Meadow Brook L. I. The match will be played Saturday.

The tournament committee of the U. S. Polo Association inspected the field and found it softened from rains last night and a drizzling fog this morning.

Argentina's "Galloping Gauchos" won the first game, 21 to 9, and need only one more victory to clinch the cup. In the event the United States team wins Saturday's third and decisive game probably will be played either next Tuesday or Wednesday.

FALLING On Ball IS BEST

RULE CHANGES CITED

By J. R. PAT HANLEY

Boston American Football Expert

When locker room football athletes start talk invariably shifts to great runs which were made at sometime or other to bring victory but the one phase of football which brings more chills, spills and thrills is seldom mentioned.

Both falling on the ball and scooping a ball are really simple but they both take practice. A player may not often have the opportunity to use these weapons but if he can exhibit in only a slightly more than a season has gone in practice will be well spent.

FALLING

Falling on the ball is the surer method of recovery when two opposing players are contending for possession. The action consists of placing the body between the ball and the opponent. The body encircles the ball, and possession is secured by covering the ball with the hands and arms, pulling it in and against the abdomen.

WALT HOLMER, Yale in University backfield coach, demonstrates [illegible] up a loose football. Pat Hanley [illegible] in today's American explains [illegible]

HANEY ON COMMUNISM

Roosevelt Policies
INDICATE TREND
Toward Red Regime

By LEWIS HANEY
(Professor of Economics, New York University)

New York, Sept. 23—Today there are many who say that a vote for Roosevelt is a vote for Communism.

Some people may think that this statement is an exaggeration. Although I have recognized that there is a great deal that is Socialistic in Roosevelt's program, I myself have been inclined to question it.

A recent news item, however, makes me wonder if the matter is not more serious than most of us realize. I refer to Mr. Roosevelt's letter of acceptance as the candidate of the so-called American Labor party.

* * *

The heading of the news item, published last Saturday, is as follows: "Roosevelt is grateful—accepts support of Labor party with 'deep appreciation.'"

This so-called American Labor party has as officers the following: Luigi Antonini, chairman; Rose Schneiderman, vice-chairman; Alex Rose, secretary; Jacob S. Potofsky, chairman of the executive committee.

It aims to overthrow the American practice of keeping organized labor out of direct participation in politics and to start a radical "bloc" such as is characteristic of European countries.

It reminds us of the old radical "I. W. W." It is as head of such a party that Stalin rules Russia.

Mr. Roosevelt's letter says: "It gives me much pleasure to become your candidate."

Lest anyone think that Roosevelt, the Labor party's candidate, is smiling and breathing good will to all, note the following words from his letter of acceptance:

"Opposed to us (sic) are all the forces of reaction and special privilege. But the fight . . . against the attacks of predatory interests must go on without abatement. The loyal support which you pledge in behalf of the American Labor party gives me new strength and new courage to continue the struggle."

What do you think George Washington, Thomas Jefferson or Abraham Lincoln would have said to this "American" Labor party (Antonini, Schneiderman, Rose and Potofsky)? Probably any one of them would have said:

"I must refuse your nomination. You stand for a class and not for the country as a whole. I must deeply deplore the formation of a Labor party as marking the beginning of class conflict in a way that will fundamentally change American government."

Jefferson might have added: "I have already accepted the nomination as candidate of the Democratic party, and must therefore decline to represent your organization."

The New Dealer may not know how close to Communism much of his thought is. He may have gotten his ideas from Tugwell or Richberg or some other radical. But the fact is just the same.

The essence of Communism is to have people work under the direction of the government, pooling the total produce and distributing it equally among the workers. Thus, production is not directed according to the value of the produce, but according to the ideas of some political brain trust.

And labor is not paid according to its productivity, but the total product is divided up according to time put in—or the arbitrary will of some dictator.

Roosevelt's words about "production for service," his payment of so-called wages to relief workers regardless of their product, and his desire to control industry and agriculture from Washington through the National Recovery Administration—these are among the things that have shown his bent. Whether he knows it or not, he heads toward Socialism.

Isn't this why the Communists do support Roosevelt?

STEEL Rate HIGHER
FRESH WAVE OF HEAVY BUYING

New York, Sept. 23 (AP) — Supported by a fresh wave of heavy buying, steel production has advanced this week to 73½ per cent of the country's capacity, the highest rate of the year thus far, "Iron Age" says today.

"Further gains in output are likely to be limited by physical factors at the mills and not by the volume of business," the Weekly Review stated. "Owing to restricted supplies of pig iron, scrap and coke and the fact that many open-hearth furnaces are still in disrepair, there is a scarcity of raw steel that is retarding operations of finishing mills."

However, steel companies are straining to eliminate production bottlenecks insofar as possible. Makers of refractories are busy supplying fire brick for the rebuilding of open-hearth furnaces and new construction is being rushed; two new 100-ton open-hearth units having been started at a Chicago plant, with two more scheduled for initial operation in October.

* * *

The heavy volume of buying in the past week has been brought about partly by the desire of users to protect themselves as far ahead as possible on those products which are to be $2 a ton higher in price as of October 1, the review says.

An advance of 50 cents at Pittsburgh and one of 25 cents at Philadelphia raised the "Iron Age" composite price for heavy melting steel scrap to $16.75, where it is only $1.50 below the pig iron composite price. Such a narrow differential that has existed between these two basic commodities in more than 20 years.

AGAINST Relief, Tax POLICIES
NEW DEAL CRITICIZED

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER
Copyright, 1936, by Universal

San Francisco, Sept. 23—Striving to tread lightly on controversial topics and to appear in a nonpartisan role, Robert V. Fleming, of Washington, D. C., president of the American Bankers Association, in his address, which constituted the formal opening of the convention here, outlined economic adjustments which are necessary if the business recovery is to be consolidated.

Despite the studied effort to create the atmosphere of nonpartisanship, Mr. Fleming vigorously criticized phases of New Deal tax and relief policies.

The president of the Riggs National Bank located in the nation's capital advocated "a review by the government of its whole relief program, which if necessary had to be developed rapidly, with a view to eliminating waste and duplication."

Regarding rising taxation, the top man of the nation's moneychangers said:

"We have the problem of taxation which, if allowed to increase, is bound to result in retarding business recovery."

Likewise, in measured polite and diplomatic language, Mr. Fleming pointed a shaft of criticism at extraordinary federal experimentation, business baiting and general unorthodoxy, pointing out:

"The major factor in this problem is the necessity of removing as far as possible any uncertainty surrounding the rules under which business operates. When 'business leaders are assured that these rules have been definitely established and are encouraged to go forward, such reassurances will add to their confidence, increase their willingness to extend their operations, and thereby increase the capacity of business to create employment through sound reemployment."

For the banks, Mr. Fleming suggested new legislation permitting a reduction of the levy for deposit insurance, and also less competition from banks not members of the system and other federal lending agencies.

The high command of the association, recognizing the importance of being in position to deal with officials of both parties, seeks to conceal from the membership the fact that the presidential election will be held on November 3. Privately, however, the delegates are quite unfeelingly pro-Landon, according to members with the widest acquaintance among bankers.

ELECTRICITY

OUTPUT UP
Production At New Peak

New York, Sept. 23 (AP)—Electric power production advanced more than seasonally expected to the highest levels ever recorded in the week ended Sept. 19.

The Associated Press index of electric output, with 1929-30 taken as 100, advanced for the week to 117.7 from 116.1 the previous week, and compared with 101.5 a year ago. The index is adjusted for seasonal and long-term trend.

The range for recent years follows:

	1936	1935	1934	1933
High	117.7	107.5	97.4	91.9
Low	102.0	94.1	91.9	80.2

Actual production last week, as reported by the Edison Electric Institute, was 2,170,807,000 kilowatt hours, a new high, compared with 2,028,583,000 kilowatt hours in the week ended Sept. 12, an increase of 7 per cent. For the like week last year output was 1,851,541,000 kilowatt hours.

Aroostook R. R. Reports Deficit

Bangor & Aroostook Railroad reports for August a deficit after charges of $105,291, which compares with a deficit after charges of $140,530 in August, 1935.

For the eight months ended August 31 there was a surplus after charges of $215,284, equal after dividend requirements for the period on the 7 per cent preferred stock, to $1.07 a share on 141,792 shares of common stock. This compares with surplus after charges of $709,321, equal, after preferred dividends, to $3.85 a share on the common, in the first eight months of 1935.

Earnings for August and eight months compare as follows:

	1936	1935
August gross	$239,142	$226,600
Net op inc	47,644	*30,350

*Deficit.

Wall Street Hears

New York, Sept. 23 (INS)—That Pullman, Inc. (PU) earnings are running at an annual rate of about $1.50 a share, against the 1935 deficit.

That an increase in the present dividend rate of Caterpillar Tractor (CTR) is probable later in the year.

That profits of Otis Elevator (OT) for the full year are estimated at 80 cents a share.

Retail Food Costs Increase

Reports from the drouth areas indicating crop shortages and increase in feed prices are reflected in the rising cost of food.

The chart shows how food prices have increased since the low price level in the spring of 1933.

Retail costs of all foods have increased 40.4 per cent since the spring of 1933. Present indications point to still higher food prices before the end of the year.

Wall Street Sidelights

New York, Sept. 23—Among those who contemplate 1937 as a good year for railway equipment builders is Harris, Upham & Co.

The firm says: "The need for repairs and new equipment for railroads is indicated by the fact that although carloadings in 1929 were 57 per cent greater than they have been this year, the surplus of cars in 1929 was 23 per cent greater than it has been this year. It is clear from these figures that any further expansion of freight traffic will necessitate a large amount of car-building and repair-work. Considerable business is also anticipated as a result of the recent request by the Interstate Commerce Commission that the railroads withdraw from service about 500,000 arch-bar trucks in freight cars as soon as possible. Freight car and locomotive builders and the steel industry should have a good year in 1937."

Un. Drug Refunding Program Pending

Reduction in the funded debt of United Drug Company is under consideration, but at the present time, according to official quarters, no definite action has been taken by directors regarding the program which finally may be adopted. Consolidated funded debt amounts to $35,975,700 5 per cent bonds due March 15, 1953. It is also understood the company proposes to refund with a lower rate of interest whatever balance of the debt is to be outstanding. As a matter of fact, the purpose of paring the total debt would be to facilitate marketing of an issue bearing a lower coupon.

* * *

Partial Bond Calls Stir Wide Interest

Partial retirement announced recently of convertible bond issues floated by a number of corporations the last year or two has drawn widespread attention to the advantages existing in such practice. Within the last few days Hiram Walker made known plans to retire approximately $2,000,000 of an $8,000,000 convertible issue, and United States Pipe & Foundry is rumored to be planning a similar step. Earlier in the month Allis Chalmers called half of its convertible debenture 4s and Youngstown Sheet & Tube called $3,000,000 of its convertible debenture 3½s. All of these issues are selling at big premiums. The existing practice of calling portions of these bonds obviously is designed to force holders to convert into stock. In this way corporations are able to reduce or retire interest bearing obligations without the use of cash and at a considerable saving in fixed charges.

Canada Dry Near Year's Highest

Canada Dry's recovery to approximately the highest price this year was partially explained in announcement of an enlarged advertising campaign on behalf of certain liquors for which the company is exclusive distributor in this country. The announcement stated the broader program has been made possible by reason of heavy increases in the sale of these spirits. It is understood the liquor division of the company is now on the most profitable basis since it was started, soon after the repeal of prohibition.

* * *

Rail Equipment Orders Climbing

Rail equipment orders have been zooming along for above a year ago. More than 22,000 new freight cars were on order as the current month opened, against a little better than 7000 a year ago and 8000 two years ago. The trend toward increased railroad purchases has been accelerating since the first of the year. More than 20,000 new freight cars were placed in service in the first eight 1936 months, against production of 2800 in the like 1935 period and 14,900 in the like 1934 period.

FISHER Fulfills DREAMS
ECONOMIC ROYALIST

By B. C. FORBES

Since 99 out of every 100 Americans belong to what President Roosevelt calls the "under-privileged," as distinct from his description of the class he was born into, the "over-privileged," the story of how Fred J. Fisher planned and plodded his way from obscurity and penury to fame and wealth, should interest millions.

Few business careers fascinate me as much. His radiates encouragement to the very humblest of American youths who are willing to pay the price for achieving prize winnning experiences and efficiency.

Born in Sandusky, Ohio, he was the oldest of seven sons and three daughters. Moving to Norwalk, the father and a brother set up a wagon and blacksmith shop.

Each boy as he neared his teens had to lend a helping hand either at anvil or lathe and bench.

At a very early age years before the average boy finishes high school—Fred settled out to augment the family's scant income. He leaned towards models building rather than blacksmithing.

Young though he was, he dreamed ambitiously—and assiduously applied himself to the laborious task of making his dream come true.

He would become the best coachbuilder in America!

How?

He formulated a very practical answer to that all-important question.

Each season he would work for a different concern—he had to return home to help out in the family work-shop (and to improve his schooling) for several months every year.

This self-conceived program he carried out.

Strong as an ox, and possessing natural mechanical talent, he gradually, rather quickly, gained both ability and reputation. By the time he reached manhood, he could, and did—sell his services to the best and biggest concern in the coach-building industry. Nor did it take long for the management of this enterprise to promote him. At every stage he made good handsomely. Finally, he was put in charge as general manager.

By this time horseless carriages were making their appearances. Fred Fisher again dreamed.

Why not switch from doing coach work for builders of automobiles?

But Fred Fisher was accustomed to getting over, under or through obstacles.

So, although he had no wealthy friends who shared his vision, and although he did not feel justified in asking strangers, the public, to supply him with capital, he did what sensible, determined men always do: he resolved to make the most of what was within his reach.

One or two of his younger brothers, particularly Charles, had meanwhile, under Fred's guidance and help, made progress in the world of work and had saved a modest amount. Fred called a family council, but the total funds available were not sufficient to finance a new enterprise on the scale he had contemplated. An uncle, impressed by Fred's work, tendered a small sum, but recently-widowed sister offered $1000, representing the insurance carried by her late husband. Fred would not accept—the Fishers have always been an extremely closely-knit, loyal, affectionate family.

Not without misgivings as to the adequacy of the capital obtainable, but without any misgivings as to the potentiality of the new venture, Fred proceeded to found the Fisher Body Co. in 1908, authorized capital, $250,000.

Things turned out as Fred feared: the capital, unlike orders, proved inadequate. One penalty approached when Fisher Body's treasury was unequal to the prosecutive demands of fully $900. In desperation, the widowed sister's thousand dollars was resorted to—with, however, the solemn pledge that, no matter what might happen to the business, her money would be returned to the last dollar.

This next sentence graphically summarizes the Fisher Brothers' Body; the $1000 investment blossomed into a fortune for the widowed sister of fully $4,000,000.

Just as Fred Fisher became America's number one coach-builder, his automotive company became number one automobile-building enterprise in America and the world.

No family in Detroit has excelled the Fishers in philanthropy.

It is impossible to gauge with exactitude what the early planning and diligent industriousness of Fred Fisher have contributed in winning automotive world dominance for America.

Does it not ill become self-seeking politicians to attempt to blacken the achievements of such a man and of others who have honorably advanced America and filled millions of pay envelopes?

Earnings

Southern Pacific Co. and transportation system companies report for seven months ended July 31 net income of $1,320,977, equal to 35 cents a share on the 3,772,277 shares, against net loss of $2,699,701 in the first seven months of 1935.

No. American Rayon

North American Rayon Corp. declared an extra dividend of 25 cents a share, payable October 1 on the Class A and B common, both payable Oct. 1 to stock of record September 22. Last previous dividend was 25 cents paid July 1.

SEC HEARING

Harvard LEADER FAVORS Stocks

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

If the SEC hearings on investment trusts do nothing else they are providing the public with some A1 ideas on current investment policy free of charge.

O. M. W. Sprague, professor of economics at Harvard University and member of the advisory board of Massachusetts Investors Trust, appearing before the commission explained his investment thoughts in some detail.

The former advisor to the Bank of England and treasury official told his questioners that common stocks offer far greater safety during the period these other preferred stocks or gilt edged bonds. This he has supported with many arguments, first normal recovery brings appreciation to common stocks a second some attach what the effect may be on bond and stock valuation. Insofar as investment trusts are concerned Professor Sprague favors those which primary aim is income rather than appreciation. And he has stated that his reasoning that the investments of Massachusetts Investors Trust would have appreciated more handsomely than the bonds which have been favored over income payers.

With the leading financial dailies carrying foreign exchange news in their lead columns on page one we feel the speculative public does not get here of late as justified. Sterling strength against the dollar continues and coincident with this idea expressed regarding ultimate depreciation against the dollar, when and if the latter is forced from gold, is certain. However, the higher the quotation goes before this happens the less we need worry about such action. As for the explanation of dollar weakness in terms of speculative sterling strength as measured by New York foreign exchange quotations is misleading as disposed of the fact the franc has yet to suit gold and its close connection with the dollar naturally causes a sympathetic decline against sterling.

Notebook: More and more it begins to look as though any French monetary action would not be an overnight affair. Rather do we think the same policy employed by the United States will be followed i.e., gold embargo, followed by a drifting currency unit until a more natural relation is found with the principal units. And the repercussions of such a procedure should not be shirked by the security markets are concerned. The chief effect we believe will be a lifting of gold prices in London. With any lower trend of the pound recent indications of other gold prices should be reversed.

With the stock market contained within a very narrow range and with the possibilities of a move out on either side covered, we find ourselves at a loss to offer any really new without going outlining the two possible buying opportunities. First, if the list moves on declining volume the probability of renewed technical strength must be considered, stocks would be a purchase. Those who have sold are at all their headings are likely in such a move. And failing this opportunity they should watch for a chance to get in on the ground floor establishments of new highs.

Ticker Ticks—Bendix acts well on the upside . . . Commonwealth Electric Auto-Lite . . . Both should be on the list of potential buyers . . . Brother sells Graphite Steel and Cleveland Graphite . . . A rumored increase in the price of iron ore is a boon to the strong performance of Newport Industries . . . National Dairy's sales of manufactured goods are said to have increased so much of late that any loss in income from the Sheffield New York division will be more than offset . . . A larger dividend declaration by Pennroad is expected by some in November.

Young Citizens Fight Mortgage on Youth

THEIR DESTINY as the VICTIMS OF FUTURE TAXATION will be impressed upon young American citizens who are going to the polls in November by the First Voters' League.

The organization of young voters who will participate in a Presidential election this year FOR THE FIRST TIME has been one of the most constructive activities of the 1936 campaign.

That the First Voters' League, the non-partisan vehicle through which young voters are giving expression to their views, is supporting the Presidential candidacy of Governor Landon is ONE OF THE MOST SIGNIFICANT developments of the campaign.

The youngest voters are the citizens upon whom the crushing burdens of government debt will rest the longest. They will be paying the bills long after the politicians WHO HAVE SPENT THE MONEY are out of the picture.

YOUNG people are appalled by the prospect of what taxation WILL BE IN THE FUTURE, if New Deal spending and wasting should be continued ANOTHER FOUR YEARS.

As the VICTIMS OF FUTURE TAXATION, they want the spending STOPPED NOW. They have already been saddled with a MORTGAGE ON YOUTH that will severely penalize future opportunity.

The election of Mr. Landon will signify to first voters, and to ALL VOTERS, that the peak of government spending has been passed, AND THAT THE PILING UP OF FUTURE TAXES HAS STOPPED.

A New Threat to Thrift

UNDER the New Deal, the man or woman who puts a dollar in a bank is an "Economic Royalist" and should be punished, or at least severely penalized. Because the national government has mortgaged the lives of babies to be born seventy years hence, individuals seem expected to do likewise.

In proposals now before the Massachusetts Special Commission on Taxation and Public Expenditures, this un-American philosophy has found new expression.

Legislators, professing to help real estate owners, maintain that the Commonwealth must have more money, that real estate cannot supply it, and that a tax on Savings Bank deposits will solve the problem.

Legislators should know better. Taxing real estate to death and then seizing bank deposits will NOT solve the Massachusetts problem, and men, elected by the people to serve the people, ought to be the first to realize it.

Intelligent economy throughout every State department is the ONLY road to prosperity. Taxing one group to relieve another group is not even a detour. It is a dead-end street.

Are You Going to Vote?

"If you know you are an American citizen—vote," advises William Frederick Bigelow, Good Housekeeping Magazine's brilliant editor.

There are 58,500,000 men and women in the United States eligible to cast ballots in the November presidential election, estimates Mr. Bigelow, who warns that "General Apathy" and his old friend and ally, "Admiral Careless," may induce 20,000,000 or more citizens to become "don't-carers" and to fail to respond to their right and duty at the ballot box.

Says Mr. Bigelow:

"If you think one-fifth of every man's income—the laboring man may call it wages, but the tax-gatherer doesn't care—is enough to pay in taxes—VOTE.

"If you think that paying $2,000,000,000 a year more for taxes than we pay for rent and $500,000,000 more than for food indicates that taxes are too high—VOTE.

"If you think things are all right as they are, that the tax load is inescapable, that squandering money will bring about such a revival of business that the taxes won't be noticed, that business should have a heavy hand laid on its shoulder anyhow—VOTE."

Let the ballot box in the picture be the ballot box in your town or city. And let the hand holding the ballot be YOUR hand on November 3.

Meanwhile, read "Are You Going to Vote?" in October Good Housekeeping. It is an intelligent article by an intelligent editor.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

New York, Sept. 23—McDougal street and McDougal Alley down in the Village have had their second season of "guesting" the open air artist colony. A colony as besmocked, bereted and long-haired as will be found in those tiny lanes veining off from the Place du Terte in Montmartre.

O. O. McIntyre

The colony lounges around on camp chairs, under steps and cellar doors with their creative efforts spread before them. Here and there a professional model is standing statue-like before an easel. Possible patrons as well as the curious elbow everywhere.

There is every style of painting, water color and pastels, even black and white drawings and etchings—landscapes, seascapes, nudes, genre paintings and countless lanes. But most of the salable efforts are portrait sketches done in a moment and sold for as little as a dime.

One Edwin Markham looking patriarch told me that during hot Summer months he averaged $3 a week. "That is enough," he said complacently, "for my needs down here." Still another told me he had made $11 in a week—which so far as he knew was top for the colony.

I wangled an extra heart skip in crashing suddenly upon this in the O. Henry story, "Afternoon Miracle."

"Alvira, are you right happy?" "I'm readin' the home paper, Ma. What do you think, that pale, tow-headed Matilda Price got the most votes in the News for the prettiest girl in Gallipolees."

More than likely sheer coincidence, but there was a Matilda Price in our town. Anyway it was comforting that as far back as that O. Henry knew the town's correct pronunciation.

It has struck me frequently that one of Manhattan's most polite and sequestered stretches is Morningside Drive. And what a pretty name! There is a hush and the scent of flowers, yet it's hard by one of the noisiest arteries.

And while strolling the area there floated out the window the strains of a pianist who had slipped back life or she was softly playing those old instrumental favorites: Nights of Gladness, Sweetheart and Graces and Narcissus.

And for no reason at all I thought of a scene between Florence Vidor and Menjou in "The Grand Duchess and the Waiter." And further along with a wince I'd become bemused with a stark nostalgia for one of those old farm suppers, red table cloth, lamp and the hound twitching on the kitchen porch.

Sartorial secret: A bow tie, more than any other male adornment, snips years off an oldster's looks. I saw a man today that reveals himself in Who's Who as 62. With his polka dotted blue bow he might easily be taken for 40.

It's interesting to drop into one of those pink lit dance halls along Broadway and permit the argus-eyed hostess, after looking you over, to select the dancing partner she imagines you will prefer. The choice for me the other afternoon was one of those babes with straight hair drawn from a severe middle part and with chandeliers dangling from the ears.

One almost expected the butler to announce: "The Duchess of Zamgi!" She was indeed a stately queen with raven colored locks swathed in green. As a matter of fact I like them fluffy and blonde.

And as I lumbered leaden-footed in the wake of her dainty treadings, I wondered just how to break the conversational ice in the two-minute period. She broke it easy with: "I like guys like you who don't talk." And by the time I pip-squeaked a "Yes ma'am, ma'am," the dance was over and she dropped me like a hot potato and walked stiffly away.

Class Prejudice is a snorting steed
With rancor under its hide.
It may be a diligent horse to lead
But a difficult brute to ride.

There may be votes in a class appeal

But what will become of the little New Deal
When the big bad broncho kicks?

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Now the vines are beginning to blaze. The grapes cling in a heavy, gloomy darkness on the coppery ground.

At dawn the light comes gently in a thick, pale tide, filling the valleys . . . advancing slowly up the ridges, covered with a silvery gauze that clings like sleep. The breakfast smoke is one straight, lazy, unbroken line against the slumbering sable of the woods. Only the squawking riot of the jays break the deep silence.

Even at noon the earth lies in a spell. The light has darkened to an amber gold, but still lies pooled, like syrup, low and still. The sky is varnished with a cobalt glaze. The oaks have not yet turned, but down the road, the rows of poplars march like candle flames. So still is it . . . so rapt and still . . . one almost thinks to hear the tinkling altar bell.

A FRAGRANT LAND

The rocks are splendid—flooded with color, now the bleaching heat has gone—mottled with smears of sulphur, rust and plum-pelted with moss, bright emerald from the first fall rain. The rocks seem filled with secret savage life. They heave themselves above the fragile grass, their huge flanks dappled with the sun and shade.

All day the fragrance rises, rich as spice, attar of all the summer's powdered flowers, bark and gum . . . tar weed and cedar . . . bay and pergamot . . . balsam and mint . . . dried apple odor of the wild rose tips. The thickets gleam with berries—waxy white, scarlet, deep orange or the elder's purple fruit.

The wood-trail dies in many colored now, coral and sorrel, ochre, violet, and fine as fog. One walks in silence through the colored smoke, and perfume rises with each muffled step.

NIGHT APPROACHES

The hills are still. Ridge upon ridge they roll, like lazy, lapping surf, from foothill mesas to the saw-toothed peaks. But nothing moves in all their brooding mass.

Cloud shadows trail great blots of indigo across the pine tree's belt of peacock blue. Cloud shadows form . . . and flow . . . and fade. And sometimes, as though happening in a dream, a plume of smoke appears above a widening ring of flame. Then dies. And once again the strange spell closes in.

There is no certain moment when the evening comes. Softly the shade slants westward from the pines. The grasses rise from gilt to ashy pink, from pink to lilac, then to cinnamon. The pines are shafts of darkness. Through their trunks the lower brush burns clear, unearthly green.

A small wind rustles through the tawny fern . . . the poplars tremble like a shaken flame.

The shadows pour, wine ruddy, down the gulch—

Across the west, there lies one crimson bar.

Then suddenly, there is no light at all. Only blue dusk, as soft and thick as down, blurring the lines of rocks and trees and hills.

And, from the dusk, the owl's first hooting call.

And, in the sky, the first, white wavering star.

Marry Go Round

By Helen Rowland

No matter what a girl's morals may be, her hats must be more bizarre and erratic this season than ever.

There is something about the tone in which a bridegroom's bachelor cronies tender their congratulations which sounds more like commiseration than like felicitation.

One of the tenderest memories of a man's life, says the Cynic, is that of his refusal by the first girl he thought he couldn't live without.

One reason why "all the world loves a lover" is because he acts so irrational and fatuous that the rest of us are filled with self-congratulation and a complacent sense of superiority.

When a man assures a girl that she is the only woman he ever loved, she may be thrilled, but she is more likely to be appalled at the prospect that she may have to do a lot of kindergarten work.

There is nothing like a day's window-shopping in the most expensive places, to make a woman forget that the rent is overdue. Somehow, just trying on imported hats that she can't afford gives her a feeling of affluence.

After a woman has gone down for the third time in the sea of matrimony, says Reno-Ruth, it takes more than a swimmer to restore her faith in men and resuscitate her dead illusions.

'Carry a Big Stick'

The Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

THE GLOBE TROTTER OF HEARST METROTONE NEWS

Edwin C. Hill

One is almost forced to the conclusion that there is a crazy streak in humanity. Again, look at the evidence in the daily newspapers.

Japan calmly informs Great Britain that she is determined to possess the strongest submarine fleet. Great Britain promptly gives notice that she will double the strength of her air force.

Italy blazons the starz promise of an army of eight million men.

Giant Russia has, probably, two million under arms, and a reserve of at least five millions.

Germany is straining every nerve and bringing herself to the verge of bankruptcy to worship at the blood-stained altar of Mars.

France announces that she is doubling her army.

In Germany and Italy, we perceive the horrible spectacle of mere children being trained for the battlefield.

All Europe is shaken by the irreconcilable conflict between Communism and Fascism.

France today quivers on the brink of revolution, and strikes are fomented because the Radical government of the French Republic will not rush to the aid of the tottering government at Madrid.

MARS HOLDS SWAY

All seems to have become hell on earth, with bloody, pitiless reprisals by both sides, and no quarter asked or given. Man tracks man with intent to kill. Fratricidal strife, the curse of the world since Cain and Abel, grips the peninsula.

And out of this Spanish nightmare, with Germany and Italy itching to help the rebels, and France and Russia openly sympathizing with the Communists and Anarchists in power in Spain, may explode a war which would shake the world to its foundations.

It makes one think, I say, and ponder our own situation and purposes. We cannot be a lamb when the wolves are on the hunt. One can only be thankful that our United States escaped involvement in the League of Nations and in the whole mess of international rivalries and ambitions.

The men who fought the League so hard back in 1919 and 1920—William E. Borah, Hiram Johnson and the late Henry Cabot Lodge—had no quarrel with the ideals upon which the League was founded. But they were statesmen, students all of foreign affairs. They knew human nature and they knew their Europe.

They fought successfully against our entrance into the League, and for the specific reason that they were convinced that eventually, as a member, we would be bitterly humiliated or dragged into another war.

We kept out of it, and well out of it, and time has proved the wisdom of that course. And we are not going to be dragged into this European mess.

Nineteen years ago a tidal wave of patriotism was sweeping over this country of ours. It was more than patriotism. It was made up of that idealism which wells in every American heart.

We rode north, the Sir Galahad of nations, without fear and without reproach. In the exhilaration of the hour, in the devotion of that high purpose, we believed that our allies were inspired with similar sentiments.

WE DON'T WANT WAR

The American people don't want war. They hate war. We will do anything reasonable to keep out of war. The cost in money from the pockets of our people was more than twenty billion dollars. The war ended in the flush of triumph and the glow of hope for a new order in world affairs.

But disillusionment came fast. It came within a year, at Versailles, when the victors squabbled and quarreled for the spoils and laid down such terms to the vanquished as have kept the world in turmoil ever since.

What do we find today? We find the great powers armed and prepared for war as never before in all history.

We know not at what moment the spark of provocation may fall into this vast powder magazine. With these indisputable facts in mind, who can honestly quarrel with our new program of national defense? It is, indeed, a colossal program. The country today is spending more money on its Army and Navy than ever before in time of peace.

Congress has appropriated $611,000,000 for the maintenance of the United States Army, and $549,000,000 for the maintenance of the United States Navy. Soon the United States Army will number one hundred and seventy-five thousand highly-trained men in active service. Behind them will stand a reserve force of 300,000. We will very quickly have a fighting force of almost five hundred thousand men.

On the seas, the United States has as many fighting ships as any navy in the world, although a proposition of them have passed the age of maximum usefulness. But our Navy is rapidly growing stronger.

No good American could reasonably protest against this preparation for defense, this insurance of our national wealth.

FOR DEFENSE ONLY

Our army and navy will never be used for aggression. It will never be hurled against any nation, unless that foe should strike at us first. But in the state of the world today it would be worse than stupidity, it would be criminal, right insanity in these perilous years, to remain unarmed and defenseless against a world which seems bent on war, and which, unhappily has no good will toward us.

But as long as the rest of the world leans toward madness, its very red trilling at us for war, its mouth filled with the challenge of battle, sneering at treaties and scornful of peace, we, the United States of America, can adopt for our own motto that ringing phrase "Speak softly, but carry a big stick," that phrase which was uttered by one of the truest and greatest Americans who ever drew the breath of life, Theodore Roosevelt.

Confusionist Strategy

By Harold Lord Varney

It is apparent that our Communist friends have reached the conclusion that non-radical Americans are not only hide-bound reactionaries, but that they are also plain fools.

The whole present Communist buildup in this country seems to be based upon the contemptuous conviction that nonradicals are too stupid to recognize a Stalinite so long as he PUTS ON FALSE WHISKERS and PARADES AN ALIAS.

Under this new "United Front" strategy, the Russophiles hope to bootleg Communism into our political system without arousing the slightest suspicion on the part of the lay public that the revolution has begun.

The effect of this confusionist Red strategy is that, today, the major part of the Communist activity in America is conducted by organizations which INDIGNANTLY DENY THEIR COMMUNIST IDENTITY.

However, an examination of the directing hands behind these sham movements reveals, in very nearly every case, an airtight control by hard-boiled agents of the official Communist Party.

A case in point is the so-called American League Against War and Fascism.

In a recent public statement issued by the League in answer to the charge of Communism, the ingenious disclaimer is offered that,

". . . The League has never stooped to deny the fact that it has Communist as well as non-Communist members. It has repeatedly maintained that these members are in a minority and that they play only a proportionate part in developing the program of the organization."

Of course, the catch in this plea of the confession and avoidance is that it is not the Communism of the League members. BUT THE COMMUNISM OF THE OFFICERS that is important.

In this particular instance, an analysis of the membership is meaningless, inasmuch as the League is composed of affiliated organizations. MOST OF WHOSE MEMBERS ARE NOW EVEN AWARE OF THE FACT OF THEIR AFFILIATION.

But when we scrutinize the roll of officers of the League we are confronted by the glaring fact that, almost without exception, they are open supporters or sympathizers with International Communism.

Technically, the full direction of the League is in the hands of a "National Executive Committee" of 87, which was elected at the last Cleveland convention of the organization.

An analysis of these 87 names, based upon all obtainable public records of Communist activity in this country, reveals the following startling facts:

Known members of the Communist Party	26
Known sympathizers with the Communist Party	12
Non-party members whose names have been linked with Communist-directed enterprises in the past	17
Known members of the Socialist Party	5
Politics unknown	27

Naturally, the work of an organization which is so lopsidedly Leftist in its directorate can be little more than A RUBBER STAMP for the FOREIGN POLICIES OF SOVIET RUSSIA.

While it talks the reassuring language of peace, its activities are carefully directed toward the single objective of the disarmament of the capitalist nations in the face of a mobilized and scheming Russia.

While it vociferates with democratic fervor against Fascism, its actual purpose is not democracy but the disunion of the non-Communist Powers in a future world contest against Communism.

Happily, we have too high a respect for the sense of humor of non-radical Americans to believe that they will long be fooled.

That's That

Clear thinking and plain speaking are characteristic of Governor Landon. His analysis of campaign issues in his Topeka address, "Our Young Republican War," is classic of clarity. "This is not a campaign based upon the usual partisan issues," he said. "It is a campaign that cuts across party lines. THE ISSUE OF WHAT KIND OF GOVERNMENT AND THE KIND OF COUNTRY WE ARE TO HAVE IN THE YEARS TO COME. In the past, for the most part, our campaigns have dealt chiefly with how the government should exercise the powers it has. NOW, in addition, we are faced by a far graver issue—What powers the government shall have and what powers it shall not have."

Governor Landon's explanation of the difference between the constitutional, democratic system of government which he seeks to preserve and the system the New Dealers are trying to foist upon the nation is one that anyone can understand it. He said:

"Under the policy we have always followed, THE GOVERNMENT TELLS US WHAT WE CANNOT DO."

"Under the other (the New Deal system) THE GOVERNMENT WOULD TELL US WHAT WE MUST DO."

Boiled down into one sentence, the question is:

Do we want to live as free people under a democratic form of government or submit to a dictatorship?

Some people say they are not alarmed by the New Deal concentration of governmental authority in Washington because President Roosevelt is trying to do what is right and best for the country. History teaches us that a benevolent dictatorship does not always continue to be benevolent. Even if President Roosevelt could be trusted not to abuse un-constitutional, dictatorial powers, clothing him with such authority still would be dangerous! He cannot be President forever.

Salinas County, California, has a real sheriff in John Abbott. When a strike of lettuce workers in the Salinas "salad bowl" threatened destruction of an 11-million-dollar lettuce crop, he deputized every able-bodied man to maintain order and protect those who wanted to work in their constitutional right to work. He protected farmers hauling their lettuce to the packing plant.

In sharp contrast to the way Sheriff Abbott of Salinas has been doing the job he was elected to do is the indifference of a radical municipal government in Seattle to the racketeering which is masquerading there under the guise of unionism. Farmers, hauling their own produce into Seattle, are stopped on public highways by "union labor patrols" and are compelled to hire "union teamsters" at 80 cents an hour to drive their trucks inside the city limits. And this is supposed to be a FREE country!

Bible Text: "They that go down to the sea in ships, that do business in great waters."—Psalm 107:23. Suggested by the Rev. Merritt A. Farren, "Seaman's Friend Society, Boston.
